

SL

There's a reason <box_name>...

Hey <box_name>,

Your account caught my attention, and I have to admit, I'm genuinely impressed.

<box_compliment>

But, there's always a reason why <box_company_name> isn't much bigger than it is right now.

Even if you feel you've nailed down the perfect marketing strategy, looking at things from a different perspective may reveal untapped potential.

After going through your content and checking out your business, I came up with a few ways to help improve the "coach-to-customer" relationship with your audience.

I've broken them down into a Google document, alongside <box_fv>. I believe this will be a great resource for us, offering several benefits for us to start the conversation and explore how we can work together to achieve our goals.

So, would you be against receiving the document?

Best,

Marcin

WORKSPACE:

I thought about changing that line, But I didn't manage to come up with something brand new, even though I've used the OODA loop.

Can someone help me drop some ideas, because I want to keep a flow in this email with unique opening

Line: Your account caught my attention, and I have to admit, I'm genuinely impressed.

<box_compliment>