Notes for instructors:

Reading

1. Focus on Reading Strategies in Class: The reading component of this course should primarily concentrate on teaching essential reading strategies and skills—such as skimming, scanning, making inferences, and understanding context clues. Ensure that students gain a solid grasp of these strategies during class time through active practice and guided examples.
2. Assign Readings as Homework: While the strategies are covered in class, assign the actual readings for homework to maximize class time for skill development and analysis. Encourage students to complete assigned readings before class so they come prepared to apply and discuss the reading strategies with confidence.
3. Encourage Self-Directed Learning: Remind students that learning extends beyond the classroom, and success in this course requires taking responsibility for their progress. Explain that while the instructors guide and support their learning, students are responsible for consistently applying reading skills to the homework texts, preparing questions, and seeking clarification as needed.
4. Utilize Flipped Learning: Since some units are self-study, prompt students to preview readings and complete video-based exercises in advance. Begin each class with a brief recap or quick assessment of comprehension to reinforce key points and address any lingering confusion.
5. Set Realistic Goals: Rather than covering every textbook activity, prioritize exercises that directly align with key course objectives. Select the most relevant exercises to reinforce reading and writing skills, and assign supplementary exercises as optional practice for those who need additional support.
6. Time Management in Class: Structure each class with dedicated time for reading and writing strategies. Allocate 10-15 minutes for interactive review sessions where students can discuss difficulties, ensuring they remain on track and focused on skill application.

Writing

1. Emphasize Writing as a Process: Reinforce that writing is a multi-step process involving planning, drafting, revising, and editing. Provide guidance at each stage to help students build strong foundational habits and reduce the pressure on final submissions.
2. Provide Consistent and Constructive Feedback: Feedback is essential for growth. After each writing assignment, offer detailed, constructive feedback that highlights strengths and points out specific areas for improvement. Use a balanced approach by noting what they did well (e.g., a strong topic sentence) alongside areas they can work on (e.g., transitions, clarity). Encourage students to review and apply feedback to future assignments.
3. Use Clear Models and Examples: Show students examples of strong writing that illustrate effective structure, clear topic sentences, supportive details, and smooth transitions. Discuss these models in class to clarify expectations and help students visualize their goals for each assignment.
4. Incorporate Peer Review and Self-Editing: Peer review sessions and self-editing checklists teach students to evaluate their work critically and improve both independently and collaboratively. Set guidelines to ensure peer feedback is constructive and focused on key elements like structure, clarity, and grammar.
5. Encourage Self-Reflection on Writing Progress: After major assignments, have students write a short reflection on their learning, challenges, and goals. This reinforces the importance of reviewing their progress and helps them internalize feedback for continuous improvement.
