How twin flame reunion and twin flame separation are different?

Twin flame reunion is when a twin flame has been split from the other for some time and is reunited with its soul mate.

Twin Flame separation comes when one loses faith in looking for or waiting on the return of their lost love. They may have moved on to another relationship (possibly an unhealthy relationship), they're divorcing/separating from their spouse, etc., while still believing that their original Twin Flame is out there somewhere waiting to reunite with them again someday.

The signs that can be telling are familiarity; lack of interest in relationships with others – or even themselves; inability to find happiness because it seems like something's missing no matter how much your personal situation improves; feeling restless at night as though you can't sleep because you're waiting for someone to come and find you in the dark; feeling restless during the day because it feels like something's missing.

If one of them is still holding on, they may start manifesting signs that their Twin Flame has been found again - which might be an attraction to a new person or even just a random sign from nature (e.g., seeing 444) – but this can lead to false hope if the other twin doesn't feel similarly about it, so it usually backfires instead of bringing both parties closer together at first.

Separation comes when there's no longer any faith left in looking for their lost love. They've moved on with their lives and are content without needing anything more than what they have now - so they stop looking.

This can be the bravest thing someone could ever do and is usually a sign that their Twin Flame has moved on to find peace in another lifetime or dimension, leaving them behind with one last kiss before departing for good, so they don't have to watch as their other half goes through heartache again.
