

Welcome to Camp Rankine!

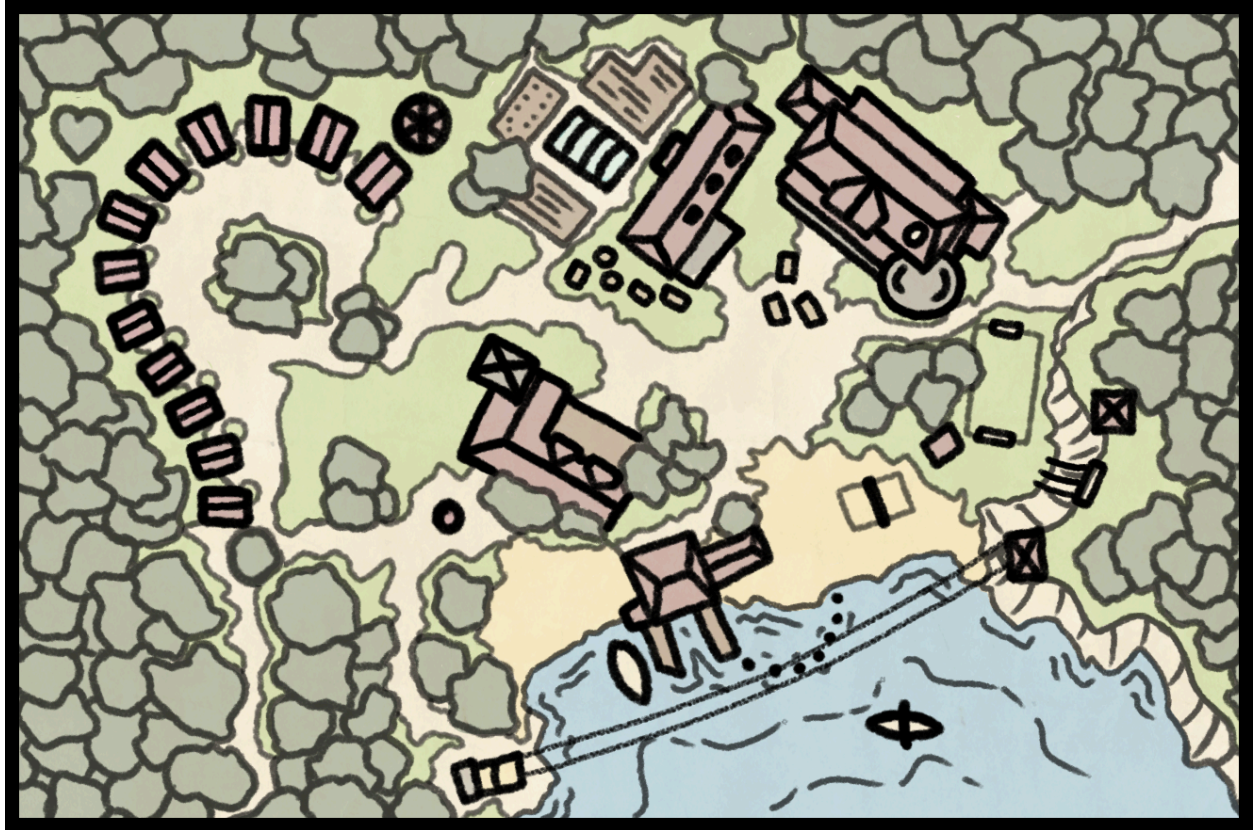

We are an initiative dedicated to you: the untapped crucible of potential that you are. In 1853, the physicist William Rankine coined the term “potential energy”: energy held in stasis, not yet actualised, ready to become something new if given the right push. Here at our camp named after this prestigious scientist, we aim to emulate this concept: To help discover your potential and springboard into something new.

Scattered about the camp are stations for the various activities that we offer, run by our excellent counselors! We have a busy schedule of all sorts: from architecture in our Think Barn to ziplining over our lake. One of our most recent add-ons to our Lodge is a VR laboratory where we can explore beyond our woods. It's a new chapter for us, as Camp Rankine is isolated enough that we don't get signal. Our counselors will do our best to match you to at least one skill or trait that you want to aim to exemplify during your stay; do it well enough, and you might acquire a few credits that can be spent in our camp store on some novelties!

To the left of our camp is the Question - a set of twelve cabins where you'll be staying during your time here. You'll be assigned a room in each with one or two more campers, who we hope you'll get along with (but no one will bat an eye if you want to switch it up - just let us know!) We'll be keeping to our schedule thanks to our Radio Tower attached to the Think Barn: Whether it's activity time, roll-call, or dinner, we believe it's important that you're always aware of the goings on at camp. After all, how will you reach your potential if you don't know what's going on?

We're all looking forward to seeing you!

- Gellert Vitio, Camp Director.
