Evolution of the Super Bowl

Alec & Isaac

The Super Bowl is the NFL national championship game; it takes place on the second Sunday of February every year.

The Super Bowl has not been called the Super Bowl for its entire life. It started out as the AFL (American Football League) and the NFL (National Football League) championship. Originally these two leagues were separate; and they decided to have their own championship game. In 1966, the leagues started moving towards an agreement to have the NFL and AFL championship teams play each other. This idea went through, and the first game happened in 1967.

The Super Bowl happened but didn't get its official name until 1969. This also was when they started counting the Super Bowls by Roman Numerals. When the Super Bowl first became a thing, the average ticket price of Super Bowl I was about 12 dollars. The average Super Bowl price of LVII (Super Bowl 2023) is 7,320 dollars!! While some are crazy enough to pay the price, most families are content with watching parties at home. For Super Bowl LVI (2022) about 99.18 million people watched the game. For America, Super Bowl Sunday is an unofficial holiday. Pizza sales rise about 35% on Super Bowl Sunday, the biggest day for pizza companies in America!

Super Bowl Sunday is big on football; however, some tune in for halftime. The halftime shows started early on with marching bands and armed forces entertainment, and quickly evolved to having famous actors and singers performing during halftime.

At the end of the Super Bowl, there is one thing left to do, present the Vince Lombardi trophy to the winning team. The Vince Lombardi trophy has been around since the 5th Super Bowl. It was named the Vince Lombardi trophy in memory of Vince when he lost the battle to cancer in 1970. Vince Lombardi was a famous football coach and considered one of the best or the best football coach of all time. The Lombardi trophy is an iconic part of the Super Bowl.

The Super Bowl is a widely anticipated event and tradition that America loves!

In 2017 the Cleveland Browns did not win a single game and went 0-16 on the season after their 1-15 season in 2016. The Browns used to be a very good team back then but now in the 2000s the Browns have not been a very good team. They have failed many times to make it to the Super Bowl and have upset the fans every year they do.

Finally, The Browns have been a very up and down team.

The Berlin Wall

Abby & Anissa

The Berlin wall was built on August 13, 1961 in the middle of the night. It was built by East Germany because the wall was supposed to separate East Germany, East Berlin, and West Berlin. The wall surrounds West Berlin. The Berlin Wall was built out of barbed wire and cinder blocks, and later was built with concrete walls. The walls were up to fifteen feet high.

After the wall was built, the lives of people on different sides changed. East Germans were separated from their families and would be punished or even killed if they tried to escape. The lives on the West side of the wall were thriving with multiple forms of entertainment, while the people who lived on the East side of the wall lived in fear and didn't trust the leader anymore. The wall was built a little while after WWII because East Germany didn't want the people over the border. East German soldiers put up the wall in the middle of the night. There was around thirty miles of barbed wire put down by them. Five thousand people were able to make it over the wall into West Berlin safely, while another five thousand were caught and 191 people were killed while trying to cross. It was illegal to cross the wall unless the person was a foreigner. The wall was taken down because of anti-government protests in East Germany, when parts of the wall were torn down.

On the 9th of November 1989, the Berlin wall was taken down by the East Germany troops, so that people could pass over to West Berlin and East Germany.
