

Negative Aspects:

- Business Partnership Experience:
The individual's experience as a business partner with Deloitte Vienna has been negative.
- Unpaid Invoice:
Deloitte Vienna booked accommodation but has failed to pay the invoice for four months, even after multiple reminders. This issue has caused dissatisfaction and concern, reflecting poorly on the firm, especially as a tax office.
- Unprofessional Interview Conduct:
The person applied for a banking consultation position and found the conversation unprofessionally conducted by Deloitte.
- HR Department Concerns:
The human resources department is described as unprofessional with outdated personnel who should potentially be fired. This reflects a negative aspect of the company's internal structure and can harm the company's reputation.

Positive Aspects:

- Competent Staff:
The text praises the competence of the staff at Deloitte, noting that they are pleasant to work with. This reflects positively on the company's workforce.
- Office Environment:
The office is described as bright and lively, indicating a positive work environment that could contribute to employee satisfaction.
- Quick Responsiveness:
The company's quick responsiveness to inquiries is also highlighted as a positive aspect, reflecting efficiency and attentiveness in their client relationships.

Summary:

The text describes a mixed experience with Deloitte in Austria, particularly focusing on Deloitte Vienna. While there are praises for competent staff, a pleasant office environment, and responsive customer service, significant concerns overshadow these positives. Unpaid invoices, unprofessional conduct during an interview, and concerns about the HR department stand out as significant pain points that need to be addressed. These negative aspects not only harm the individual's perception of Deloitte but could also impact the broader reputation of the firm in Austria, especially in contrast to its well-regarded international presence.