High School Dress Code

Our dress code in a sentence: Students should be dressed for class as they would be for prayer. Clothing for prayer, and hence for school, is both “dignified” and “modest.”

Dignified clothing is that which you would reasonably wear in front of respectable people. Dignified clothing is comfortable but not slovenly. Dignified clothing shows respect for one's Lord and one's companions. The greater the adab, the greater the benefit.

Modest clothing is that which covers both the appearance and shape of the body. Accordingly, modest clothing is loose and often long. The Prophet (Allah bless him and give him peace) instructed all men and women that, “Modesty is from faith,” and that “Modesty brings only good.”

We're trying to help our students make good choices and learn how to think through complex decisions. As for making good choices and thinking through appropriate dress, we want our students to ask themselves, “Can I pray in this without modification?” If the answer is “No,” then the clothing is not appropriate for school. If you can't pray in it, if you wouldn't wear it in the presence of respectable people, if it doesn't cover the appearance and shape of your body, don't wear it to school.
