Front-end Developer Position (DataGrid)

About DataGrid
We develop and implement digital solutions to help companies improve their operational setup and succeed in the digital world. We empower businesses to digitalize client management and streamline processes, all powered by a single-view, adaptable, no-code dashboard, flexible data model, and the infrastructure to support it.

We are currently creating a new General IT department at DataGrid and are looking for a junior front-end engineer to help with the development and support of the web resources of our company and affiliated partners.

Position Specification

As a front-end engineer, you will be involved in developing the company's corporate network of websites, both in terms of marketing resources and service integration. Responsibilities include direct website development and support, as well as cooperation with all the relevant teams – Marketing, Design and IT infrastructure.

Main tasks:

- Development and maintenance of corporate websites
- Troubleshooting, incident handling, and bug fixing
- Developing and maintaining internal software tools
- Writing technical documents

Technical competencies we are looking for:

- Proven experience in developing web applications using React and related technologies
- Strong understanding of web standards and accessibility
- Experience in static website generators (e.g., Gatsby, Astro)
- Experience in headless CMS integration (e.g., Contentful)
- Advanced knowledge of TypeScript is desirable
- Confident knowledge of English (B2+) is desirable

What else we can offer:

- The opportunity to gain experience in a highly valued business area
- Competitive salary commensurate with experience
- Flexible working style: 100% remote, with teammates located throughout the globe
- Generous gear credit
- Relocation package after the trial period
- Additional training and improvement of professional competencies at the company's expense
- English courses at the company's expense
