

NAEE NATIONAL PD CALENDAR

Introduction: The NAEE network is composed of diligent educators who toil tirelessly at the state and local level to deliver content and resources to an appreciative group of classroom teachers within a feasible radius. The members at the foundation are an assorted collection of organizations, some venerable and endowed and others still trying to establish a foothold. The desire to enhance the confidence and competence of the teachers in the fold is the common thread shared throughout. How can the network improve the signal strength of this carrier to more corners of the nation?

Though nothing may ever replace the potency of an in-person workshop, the advent of video-conferencing and its ubiquity during the pandemic have led us all to rely on that technology to extend our reach. With the proper resources, many of us have become skilled in developing compelling presentations that combine informed content with lively participant engagement platforms. One of the advantages is that we can communicate to the corners of our state out of physical reach and effectively beyond that ambit. In such a borderless world, why couldn't those members with resources to offer occasionally share their bounty with their counterparts and teachers in varied locations?

Purpose: The vision for this calendar is that it will become populated with an array of workshops, speaker engagements and webinars that members offer to share with any teacher anywhere willing to commit the time. The calendar will be centrally managed and display the sign-up links and a brief description of the presentations the individual provider chooses to share. Professional development credit for out of state participants can not be expected. But, for teachers seeking additional content and resources, this would leverage the collaborative potential of the NAEE network.

Requirements: Any member interested in sharing their event must use the Google Form embedded under the shared PD calendar on the NAEE website to provide event details. The calendar will be displayed on the NAEE website, but members can use the embed code below to share on their own websites. The calendar will be continuously updated as the information comes in.

Embed Code: NAEE members may embed this professional development calendar on their websites, just use the following code:
