

A collection of evidence regarding the toxic behaviour of a Splatoon artist called To_turtle_doves/PotatoTheOctoling.

I will call them Joasa in this document because this was their original nickname.

But here are all usernames they have gone by:

Daisy, Daisie, PotatotheOctoling, Nightmar3_Mirror, Nightmar3Art, Inkyysprout, BoxSquids, Mag, Draw more squids, Jossingreen, JessiJos, Jos, Cheese, Skye, Toebee69, Jossi3, ElTottie, Toby, OctolingInABox, N3M, Potato, PotatoSquid

This will be my final statement on this individual.

I will distance myself from them after publishing this document for the safety of my friends and my own safety and sanity.

They will always change their name and pretend to not be associated with their past personas but their art is very easy to spot:

If you find someone with this art then yeah, it's Joasa.

While this I will use this doc to call them out on their toxic and problematic behaviour do not take that as a reason to attack or troll them back.

Please don't share this in unrelated places tho as this was posted only a private account to not cause drama and to only share this to Jos' victims or potential victims.

To sum it up please don't be a dick no matter if you love or hate Joasa.

Here is another more detailed callout document (over 60 pages with lots of evidence):

Silver_fish1es' Joasa callout

For your sanity I created this document to keep it short.

To Joasa's friends, whiteknights and followers:

If you are a friend of To_turtle_doves I'm not telling you to drop them. Do whatever you want.

That's all. You may now leave since I doubt this doc is for you.

General info on Joasa as a person:

Joasa is an adult who likes to draw Splatoon characters. They started participating in the Splatoon art community back in the miiverse days about 5 years ago.

They are at least 23 years old as confirmed but they have reacted to a reddit post that asked for people at least 25 years old tho so they might be older.

They change pronouns with each new username but most often go by she/her and they/them.

They have once stated to not care about pronouns so they are fine with any.

They live in america and are republican and christian.

They have claimed to tolerate people who are transgender but have stated it to be a lifestyle they can't personally agree on as it seems to clash with their values.

They are the owner of at least one dog and a cat.

Nothing more is really known in public.

Now onto the actual document...

1. Overwhelmingly negative in public Discord servers and bringing dark topics like depression and suicide up in front of everyone

Joasa is an artist who has become pretty well known by participating in the Splatoon community. While having a splendid art style this isn't the reason why most people are familiar with them tho. The true reason is that whenever this person keeps popping up they cause negativity.

It's okay to vent or rant in a while, in fact it's very healthy but it's inappropriate to always vent especially in front of people who are strangers and have stated they don't want it. Strangers in a Splatoon art discord aren't therapists.

There are many teens who just joined a server to look at nice Splatoon art and instead stumble across Joasa venting and bringing up topics like suicide and depression.

Many discord servers have a no vent and no negativity rule which Joasa ignores. If they are asked to stop or take it to DMs they label the mods as ableist. Joasa thinks they should be allowed to vent and rant everywhere since they were diagnosed with depression and that anyone who says otherwise is shaming them. They always use this excuse.

Joasa has lashed out at strangers in discord conversations when they were asked to stop venting and cause negativity in front of everyone and even has blackmailed discord mods for removing them from said discord servers. If they aren't let back in they said they'd kill themselves.

Ever since Joasa got removed from discord servers due to their behaviour they have started leaving comments on other people's posts or art and tries to vent that way. They will vent about having beef with other people or getting kicked from zines and servers in front of people who aren't related to it. They will even join discord servers just to vent about other servers.

This behaviour goes back into the old Miiverse days in which they have been known as an artist with a very negative attitude who will bring negativity into the community by ranting and venting nonstop and without listening to people who try to cheer them up or search for solutions.

They will even push people who try to help them under the bus if they eventually ask Joasa to stop being so negative. Joasa claims that these people are just ableists, haters or stalkers.

So they will see people as their enemy when they ask Joasa to become more positive or search for solutions to Joasa's problems.

2. Blaming other artists for their misfortune to a point of wanting to ruin them and giving them stress and trauma

Joasa's negativity has also gotten much more aggressive during the past years to the point of them downright blaming anything that happens to them on other artists. Even if nothing bad happened but instead something good happened to another artist Joasa will see that as an attack and claim they should have been the lucky one instead.

Joasa seems to feel attacked whenever an artist is successful selling their art online, gets accepted into zines, gets nice comments or has a lot of followers. While Joasa claims that they think their own art sucks they will also openly state that they are the one who deserves so much more fame and attention. It seems they only call their own art bad to receive praise but when someone cheers them up they will just ignore that person and continue to bring other artists up who don't deserve their fame and that Joasa should have it instead.

One example for this is that Joasa used to run a big art account with a few thousand followers but they would still rant about other artists with more followers. It seems they are never satisfied and see everyone else as an enemy who doesn't deserve anything. Unless the other artists get ruined Joasa isn't happy.

Another example is that Joasa has been in a handful of zines and even tried running two or three zines themselves. However they will still claim to never have been in a zine and how everyone else doesn't deserve the spot in zines which should be theirs. They talk about this even within zine servers. That shows that they don't even realise they have been in a lot of zines before and only care about venting about other people who get spots in zines.

They won't back up from calling other people an asshole or a bitch in a public place such as a Discord server without any evidence of that person having caused any harm. Joasa will claim that other artists have been mean to them, again without any proof, and ask other people to stop supporting or unfollowing them. They think that if other artists lose all their followers, support and fame that they will feel better.

Joasa is actively trying to ruin the reputation of other artists and there seems to be a pattern with the targets they chose. Here are the two main reasons Joasa will target an artist and try to ruin their reputation:

Reason 1: It's just because they have more followers than Joasa and that angers them because they think their own art is better. They have a huge hatred for anyone more popular than themselves and think that those big artists don't deserve the fame.

Reason 2: Joasa actually likes the art and looks up to the person but the artist doesn't want to be buddy-buddy with Joasa or ignores them since they don't have time for chatting. Joasa feels like the artist looks down on them and wants to punish them for it.

3. Picking fights with others, trying to witchhunt them and threatening to commit suicide if they lose the argument

This is a whole can of worms to open.

The main reason why a lot of people state that Joasa has inflicted emotional harm upon them is because of how they treat people they dislike or are in a fight with.

Joasa has a history of name dropping people they dislike or who they think did them wrong on their instagram story. They will either leak DMs or private info of these individuals and hope to receive their followers' support against the person.

Joasa has claimed when confronted with this that they hate witch hunts and would never do something that evil. But they are okay with name dropping others and let the followers decide which is initially how witch hunts are started. They use pretty words to make excuses for this.

This way they have sent harassment to more than 3 people to an extent of these people having to private their accounts. Their excuse is: 'I can't control what my followers do.' They will not even stop the witch hunts even when the victims are making them aware of it, still claiming that it's out of their control and they won't tell their followers to stop.

They have also posted detailed descriptions of what they want to happen to their 'enemies' on their instagram story and have created several alt accounts to evade blocks, spy on those who don't want to be associated with them.

They have leaked zine rejection mails and conversations with mods in order to witch hunt them and ruin the reputation of their zines. They have joined zine servers for the purpose of talking bad about said mods and tried to ruin their zines for not accepting them.

Whenever they are at a loss because they can't ruin the person they resort to name drop the person and state that they will kill themselves due to the person being a bully to them. They seem to hope that they will get the other party to give up or apologise.

4. Tracing Art

Joasa has been caught tracing at least the weapons in their drawings. It's unclear if they trace anything else but in their commission sheet they charge up to 20$ extra per traced weapon.

EVIDENCE

Starting on the next page is a collection of evidence. All screenshots were taken between early 2020 - early 2021.

Screen recordings of most conversations exist to back up the legitimacy since Joasa started claiming that all screenshots ever are faked. If you ever run into this person I suggest you take videos of conversations as well since they are very quick to delete them and frame you as a liar.

I try to only add public evidence on the following pages or DMs that were already public or posted by Jos' themself. No info that was acquired through doxxing or through unpublished private DMs has been added. Please don't ask me to update this doc with private DMs since that's tasteless. We want to prove we don't step down on Joasa's level.

As to my knowledge Joasa claimed having been doxxed some years ago but the info was never made public, nor has evidence for this been found. Joasa never made a statement who was the doxxer despite name dropping many people they get into petty arguments with, so it is assumed that they just lied about it for pity and couldn't name the doxxer because they never existed since people offered their help to have the person face consequences.

If the info was somewhere it would not be spreaded in these docs since we are against doxxing.

Screenshots from accounts such as twitter, instagram and reddit were when all accounts involved were set to public.

Testimonies at the end are from 2019 - 2020.

I Yeah Thanks

Joasa leaving toxic comments under other people's art:

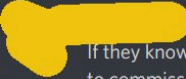

Joasa trying to guilt-trip a mod for kicking them from a zine after breaking the zine rules and then blaming it on 'bullies':

Trash talking a random commissioner within an unrelated zine server:

 Jossi3 heute um 02:41 Uhr
i did nothing wrong he was the asshole

 heute um 02:42 Uhr
If they know that that they are going to pay for something that they have no control over the final product why would they want to commission you?

 Jossi3 heute um 02:42 Uhr
because they liked my art and my prices were cheaper than anyone else doing the style

 heute um 02:44 Uhr
My comm prices are cheap for what they are as I could spend 4 hours on an icon but I still show the sketch to them because I know that the art will eventually become theirs

 Jossi3 heute um 02:44 Uhr
well good for you

 heute um 02:45 Uhr
This applies to everyone though

 Jossi3 heute um 02:45 Uhr
im sorry im not perfect like you

 heute um 02:45 Uhr
He paid you money for your art, meaning that it'll eventually be his

 Technically you are the boss because you're supplying the cash, you should have the right to make changes along the way, unless you are giving the artist free reign in terms of what to do. Then and only then would it be completely fine
If he told you hey you can do what ever you want with my oc then it's not your fault

 Jossi3 heute um 02:59 Uhr
I had already made an exception for him he did actually he just said "draw my character with this weapon" and i did i did exactly what he said

 heute um 03:00 Uhr
Ok but why did you have to say wow you really don't like my art after saying that he prefers mask on?

 Jossi3 heute um 03:00 Uhr
but no matter what it's not my fault the entire fandom hates me

 heute um 03:00 Uhr
If we hate you you wouldn't be here

 Jossi3 heute um 03:00 Uhr
because he told me he didn't like how i drew the mask instead of thanking me

 heute um 03:02 Uhr
So? If you just made the adjustments without any drama, you wouldn't know if he would thank you or not in the final product

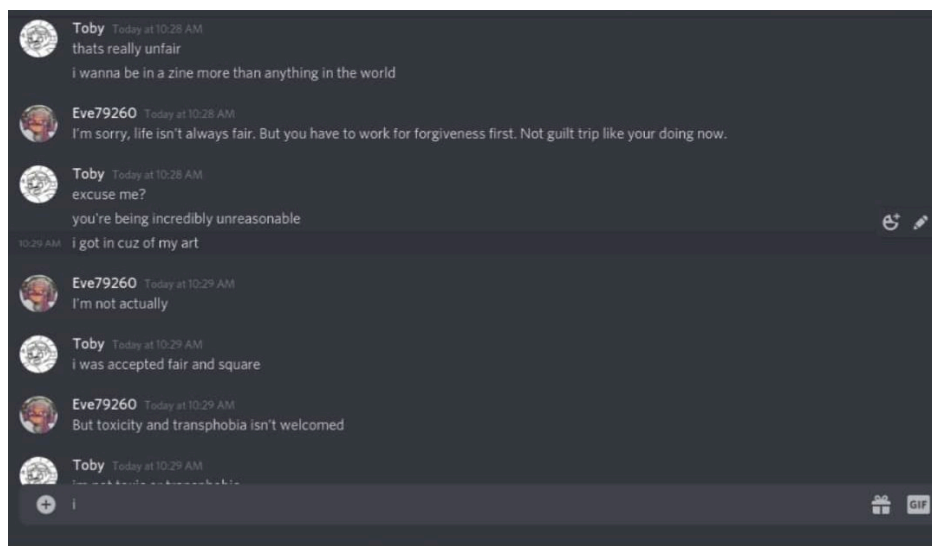

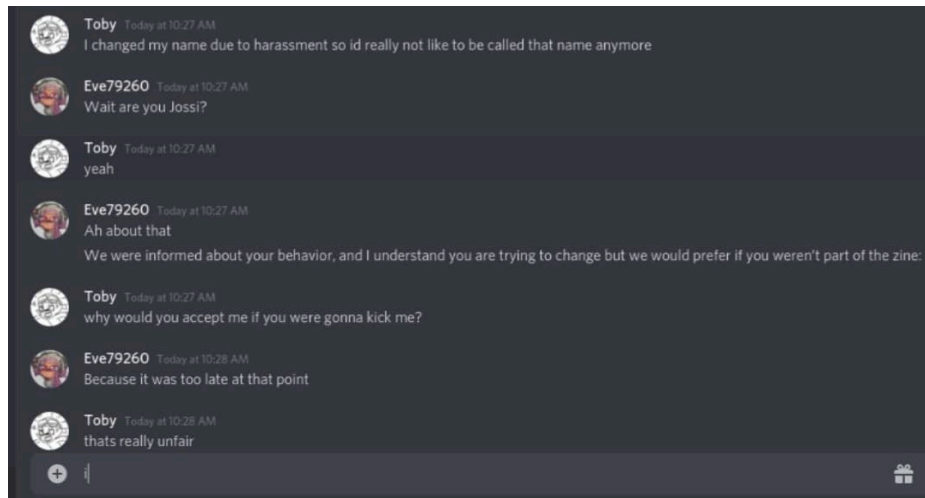

Joasa claiming to not get into zines and venting about it within a zine server that accepted them:

Joasa ranting that only bad artists follows them and that they want to be friend with good artists instead:

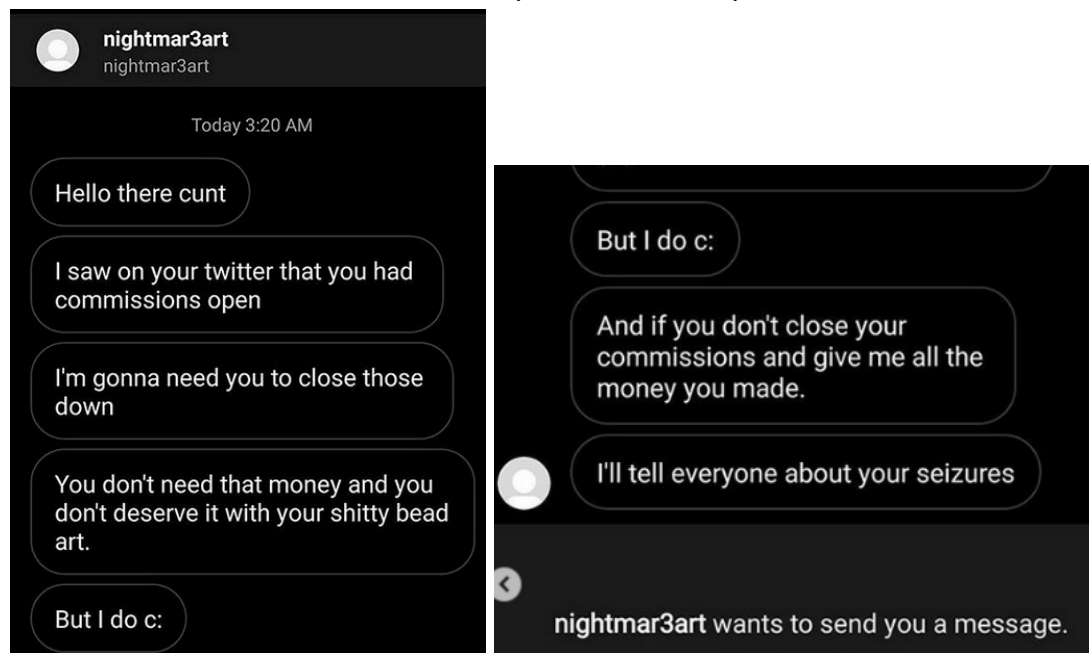

Joasa leaked these screenshots of a conversation with a zine mod who kicked them not even censoring their name in hopes to have people go after the zine:

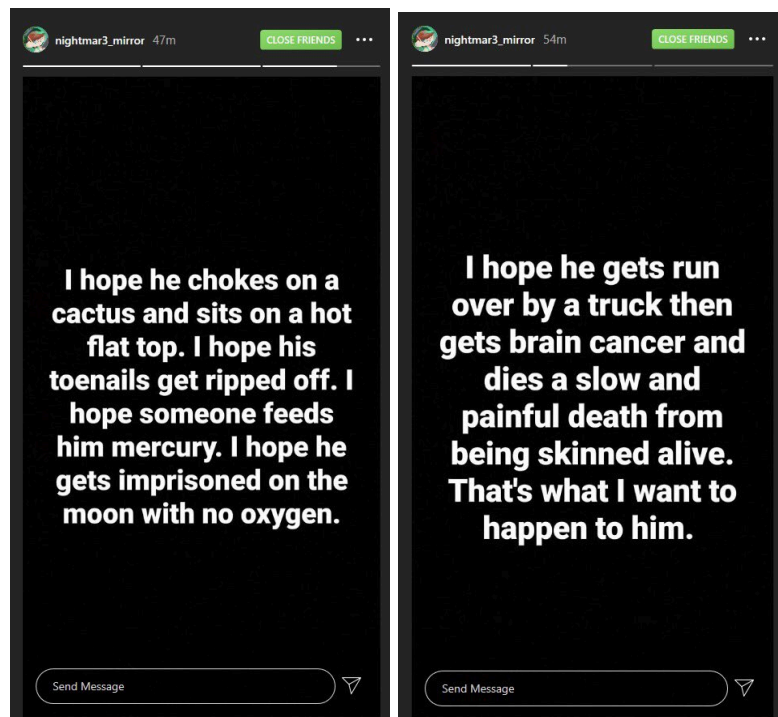

They posted this to their instagram story and told their followers to boycott the zine:

Joasa sent money to a person who felt harassed by them and was trying to buy their forgiveness:

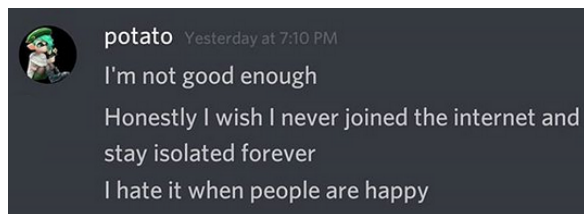

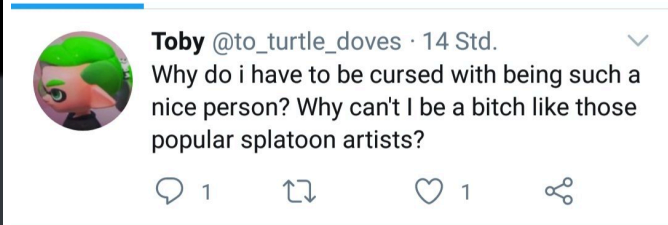

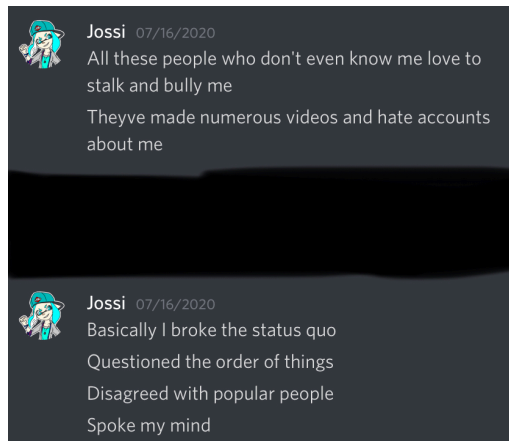

Evidence of Joasa going around claiming that people bully them for no reason when they were the one who did them wrong:

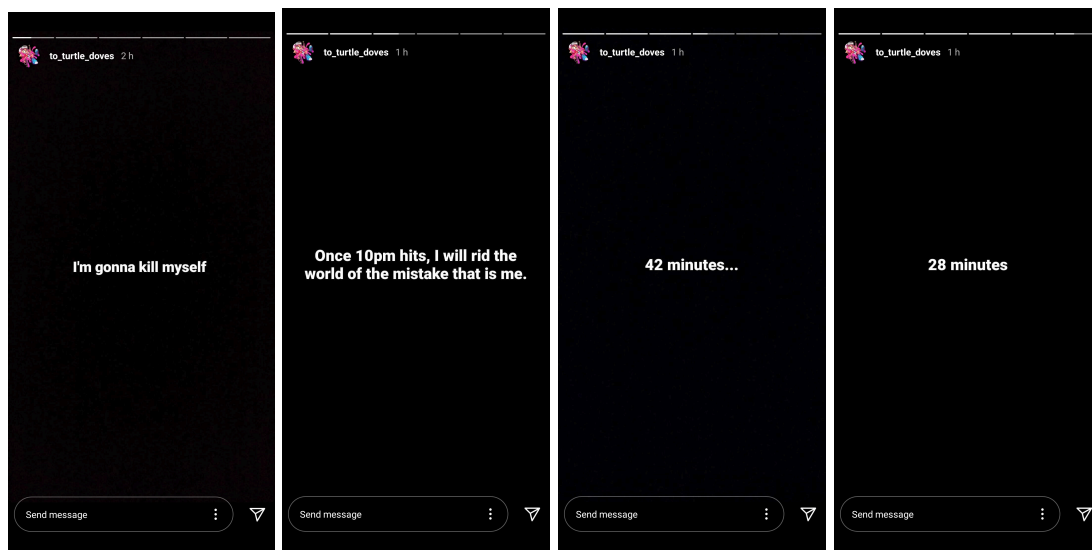

Joasa also has a past of making very transphobic comments:

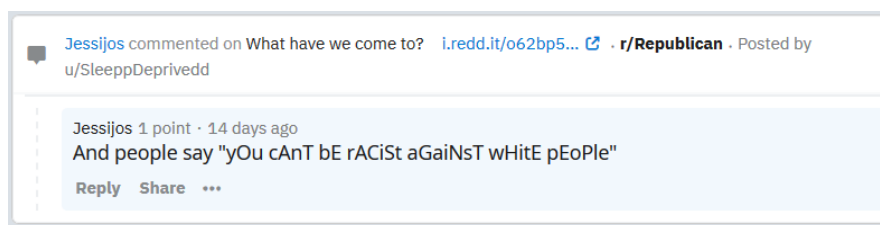

Joasa ranting in public places that everyone else is in the wrong and they never did anything, generally being negative towards everyone:

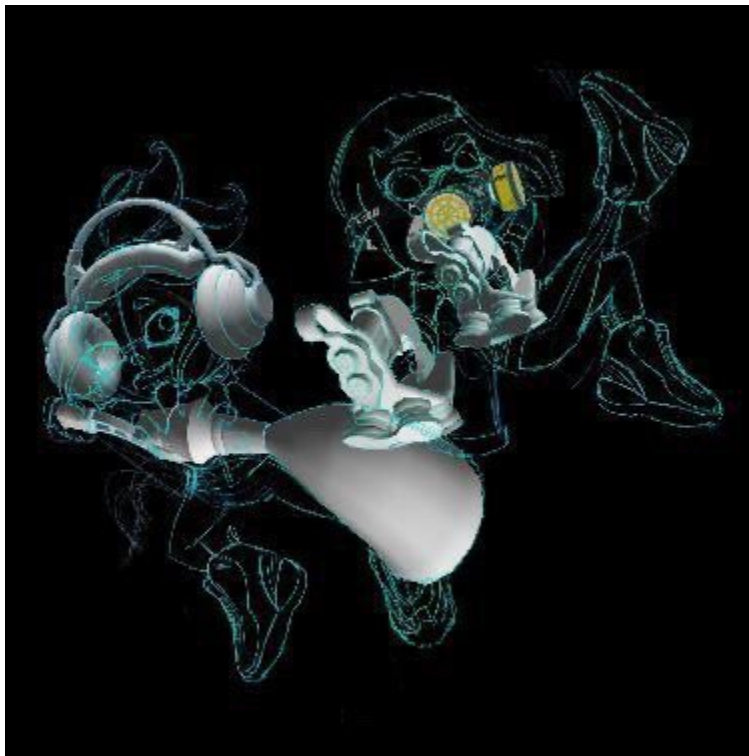

While being in an argument Joasa was posting a countdown to their instagram story claiming to end their life to force the person to apologise to them:

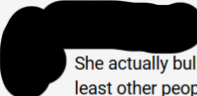

Joasa is also active in very problematic republican subreddits where they for example defend reverse racism:

Recently Joasa has been caught tracing the weapons in their drawings off the ingame Splatoon models:

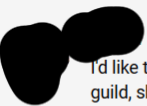

And at the end some testimonies by other people who were harassed by Joasa:

She actually bullied me a few years ago along with this other user, they both played the victim and made me feel like a piece of crap. At least other people are aware of her behavior. Thank you so much for making this video.

I'd like to share my experience with her potato as she was in my guild for Love Nikki for over half a year. Almost as soon as she joined my guild, she started to complain about how miserable her life is and how everybody betrays her. She told us that the community she was previously in hated her and pushed her out. We all tried to comfort her and help her but she would just ignore us and continue to whine about herself. One day she posted in our discord server how she wanted to end her life and when multiple guild members reached out to ...

She also has done this on miiverse back during the original splatoon. She's blaming a nice artist for everything and that her "friends have been stolen from her" because of it.

I took her side, trying to neutralize and end the situation by trying to help her feel better, which did not work. DO NOT attempt to help her. She shot down all of my advice, and does not take anything I said into account. She posts things on her vent that make everyone following worried of her committing suicide, so in a last ditch effort, I even badmouthed the nice artist I mentioned earlier (sensing the name for privacy) to try and make her feel better. She responded alright to that, but I felt really bad about it. It was in private, yet she has a lot of hate towards multiple artists in the splatoon community. I take full responsibility for everything I have done while trying to help her. It was a bad call on my part, but did manage to keep her from committing suicide. She is beyond help and needs a professional to assist her.

She is inevitably hopeless and I hope this movement to call her out snaps her out of her ways. Please be careful around her and block and report at will.

I tried to help her too or atleast cheer her up for quite a while but as you said she denies everything and doesn't even want to try. She doesn't even want to be happy, that's what she once told me. I still try to help but slowly but surely I lose my dedication for that too. It's just hopeless..

I was one of her victims too, less than two years ago. She and another user bullied me in a private conversation, and tried to make me look like the bad person. She even virtue signaled on Miiverse about it with that other user bullying me. I felt like crap. I even cried for God's sake. She played the victim so much, I actually started to believe that she WAS the victim and that I was a bad person. Then I saw how TRULY toxic she was because she was constantly fishing for attention on Miiverse, and on another person!...

 I'm so very sorry that she has been this toxic to you, oh my god.

I'm friends with one of the people who were interviewed in this video and they told me that potato was a big attention whore on miiverse and harassed others for absolutely no reason. Tho I must say that all the hate get's a bit out of hand because she said she has been getting death threats too....

Thank you daMN. She joined my discord a while ago and made fun of me for venting there, then later blocked me on my instagram account. I persuaded a friend of mine to get her to unblock me and the first thing she did was start bullying and belittling me in the DMs. I tried contacting her via deviantart with a comment were i was brutally honest. And she deleted her deviantart account and blamed me telling her followers i "harassed" her

Ive seen many people who have reported that on squidboards if anybody was to disagree with what she said she would say it was "bullying" or "hating"

One of my artists friends on instagram told me about how Potato was venting and trying to get pity on her art account despite having a vent account. When my friend pointed this out Potato told her to "go away" and blocked her.

Another friend of mine gave Potato a shout out on his page as she was complaining about having little amount of followers and she DMed him telling him to delete it.

I used to be "friends" with Potato, she'd always say how she never has any friends and yada yada trying to get people to feel sorry for her. One day I honestly had enough of her constant negativity, so I asked her to stop. She then tells me to go away, I asked her if we were still friends and she begins accusing me of stalking her and tells me to "stop being negative". I honestly was very confused, I try to defend myself and she says "Only negative people run around calling others negative randomly" and then asked who made me confront her. I said "myself" and sent screenshots of her posting a screenshot on her Instagram story of someone following her and saying "is this the part where you come crying back to me, begging on your knees for forgiveness?" then she says that it's her private account and that she can say whatever she wants and I say "And yet I can't say my own opinion?" she then says that I'm not a safe person to have on her personal account and that I'm calling her out when all I did was ask her to stop being negative. So I blocked her after saying farewell. Shortly after, I get word from my friend that Potato messaged her and pretended that I was flipping out on her over a vent. Of course, Potato attempted to turn my best friend against me but failed. I showed the screenshots of what actually happened and my friend knew me well enough to know that I wouldn't just randomly flip out on someone without reason. And that's my experience with Potato, of course if you want the screenshots please contact me on Instagram and I'll be happy to share them with you.
