Personality

Myo is quite the solitary cat, preferring to spend her time alone or, if necessary, with as few people as possible. She avoids crowds at all costs and appreciates if cats notice this and allow her to leave instead if caught in such an environment.

She is level-headed and realistic, Myo tends to see situations how they truly are and is good at looking at the big picture.

Myo picks up on skills easily and tends to excel at almost anything after being given some time to catch the hang of it. Myo doesn't usually brag about her success though, it is apparent enough without mentioning it.

Myo is extremely stoic, especially for such a young cat. She feels uncomfortable expressing emotion and instead comes off as apathetic, rude and self-centered in order to avoid showing vulnerability.

She tends to speak very honestly and bluntly, without a filter. When she speaks she says exactly what she's thinking and doesn't really care if this way of speaking gets her in trouble.

She is extremely loyal to those she considers close, and surprisingly compassionate for underdogs or those she believes are treated unfairly, sticking up for these cats when others won't.

Myo is independent and, unlike her mother, is good at completing work that is asked of her on time. Not that she likes to work, she does not, but she'd rather get it out of the way immediately.
