

EMAIL SUBJECT:

Are the nations in your midst on your radar?

Hello again [RECIPIENT],

Imagine you installed an app on your phone that served as a radar system. But this radar wasn't for detecting weather, or performing surveillance, or navigating vessels.

Instead, the blips on this particular radar notified you every time you came in close proximity with a person from another country who was in need of a friend, a helping hand, and the Good News of Jesus.

Such an app would be especially useful for Christians like us who aren't serving as full-time missionaries in other countries. It would give us a way to personally respond to the Great Commission without moving overseas!

Alas, there is no such app.

But I use this illustration to bring attention to a much-needed paradigm-shifting approach to reaching the nations. God has more than one strategy for Christians to make disciples of all nations. He is not only sending the Church to the nations, but He is sending the nations to the Church!

That's right. International students, immigrants, and refugees are in our midst. And it's time they got on our radars too!
