With final exams around the corner, now is the time for students to focus on finishing their classes strong. For some students, this might mean continuing the great work you have done all semester. For others, this might mean completing missing work that will still be accepted by teachers or attending Access Time on Thursday mornings to ensure readiness for remaining exams and finals. Students can also plan to attend the Cocoa and Cram study session sponsored by the National Honor Society on 12/13/2023. Please reach out directly to teachers if you need additional help in your classes to finish out the semester. Teachers and Counselors are available during Access Time every Thursday morning from 8:35 am - 9:30 am. Additional Tutor time will also be available during finals week. See the Finals Week schedule for more information. National Honor Society tutors are available in the Fairview Resource Center in the library (let your counselor know if you would like to sign up for a tutor).
