I want to learn about how you . . . I want to learn about how you became such an overachiever. You completed six out of the possible six blog prompts?! Come on! -Cam I want to learn more about the photos on your homepage - are the designed related to math? Also, did you do this by just inserting images and text boxes? (Hilary) I want to know why you posted on the homepage that students will never use math in real life. What's your strategy for posting that? -Jenny	Looking at ____ made me wonder ____ (about student learning) Looking at your flipped lesson made me wonder whether it's a problem that you consider your lesson to have been a substitute - do you think engagement was still higher because you were using tech? (Hilary) Looking at your photos made me wonder about adding visuals (for ex. "Wait, this is math?") to my site to make learning more accessible for students. BK
Other thoughts . . . I really like how you set up your resources page, but I think if you made all the pictures the same size and organized them in columns and rows it would look sharper. -Jenny You might reconsider making the background less dark (the dark grey).
