

Memoirs and observations of Justice system misconduct with the use of criminality and mental health labels purposed for population control & social cleansing

- High risk criminality is based on the concept of control and institutionalisation within the Criminal Justice System. Mortification of self, Breaking sessions, Incorrect use of symbolic interactionism, misuse of looking glass self. Institutionalisation with the intent to possess or institutionalisation with the intent to commit crime or other.

Institutionalisation issues

- excessive institutionalisation & incorrect use of institutionalisation
- Severe pain from bringing the institutionalisation process forward with the potential of causing serious harm and/or endangering life.
- -Breaking sessions being employed and misused with the intent to torture or harm
- Mortification of self in/out of an institute and reletivising incorrect drives such Symbolic interactionism incorrectly implemented whether with or without intent to cause harm or infringe on human rights.

Probation officer and officer misconduct

- A matter of concern and becoming a problem within the justice system is what I strongly believe to be misuse of information with the intent to commit crime.
- The figures on Increases in criminality and the reoffending patterns of offenders is influenced drastically by misuse of information and information incorrectly submitted or detailed. Cherry picking information with the intent of committing crime is deceitful, disingenuous and false, this is compromising the image of trust, power and safety that thousands of authentic professionals work tirelessly to achieve.
- Wrongful access to Information and wrongful distribution of information is a high-risk problem amongst justice system practitioners and is still an illegal act despite any role or power given by their respective organisation. Unlawful access itself is a stand-alone offence and should be taken very seriously, human rights laws is not something that should be bypassed under any circumstance.
- Neglecting the rights with the intent of ignoring or covering up severe criminality or problems. Any misuse of institutionalisation or significant damaging of an individual's life is the responsibility of the officers involved and should not be neglected wilfully. Any severe pain/agony or suffering should be the main priority for the officers to resolve.

High risk crime and organised crime within The National Probation & Police Force

- High risk criminality is based on the the concept of control and institutionalisation within the Criminal Justice System. Mortification of self, Breaking sessions, Incorrect use of symbolic interactionism, misuse of looking glass self. Institutionalisation with the intent to possess or institutionalisation with the intent to commit crime or other.
-
- Forced humiliation and controlled degrading using institutionalisation with or without the intent to torture is a National crisis within the UK justice system. Mental health itself can be quite problematic and in some cases serious on an individual's life but mental health itself should be monitored correctly without being confused or misconstrued with criminality. The use of institutionalisation or breaking sessions to address mental health or crime is a very important subject, any loss of self should be carefully reviewed to make clear the difference between intrusion of human rights and job. Officers should never use the process to the extent that loss of self has irreversible or harmful effects on an individual. Any loss of self that has significant impact on somebody's life needs review, because continual mortification of self and incorrect relativization's can leave the individual overwhelmed leaving the individual institutionalised.
- This is not mental health, it is illegal misuse of institutionalisation, any use of mortification of self or degrading that leaves any human being in a mindless or controlled state should be classed as illegal and an infringement of somebody's human rights despite the inevitable counter alibi of mental health. Any rationalisation of torture using institutionalisation by officers using mental health should be strictly regulating with immediate arrests. If officers use the institutionalisation process with the intent to endanger life or possess an individual IT IS ILLEGAL!
- For example, if a prisoner in a criminal institute has undergone breaking sessions for breaking of character, they have left the individual with very little character and has potentially been overwhelmed by the process due to frequent mortification of self and a vast use incorrect character re-imprinting. If this individual then has for example, His sex drives re-imprinted into deviant sex drives like homosexuality by misuse of institutionalisation, this then prescribed by law is an offence if against this individuals preference. If an inmate has his sex drives re-imprinted in an institute into homosexuality with the intent by the officers to use him for sadistic humiliation and sexual degrading, it should be arrestable and held in a court with the same guidelines as rape or other crimes.
- any individual that has incorrect drives or relativizations should be treated as a victim and the issue should be resolved as a priority. Any character reimprinting or rebuilding within an institute should never endure incorrect drives or reletivisations that cause harm or suffering.

This taken into perspective

“cessante ratione legis cessat ipsa lex...”