Frequently Asked Questions

What are US stocks and indices?
US stocks are shares of companies listed on major exchanges. Indices like the S&P 500 or Dow Jones show how groups of stocks are performing together.

Can a beginner trade US stocks on ForexT? (To be confirmed)
Absolutely. Our platform is designed so even first-timers can pick it up fast. Try the demo account first — no real money involved.

How do I start trading US markets?
Create your account, link your number and email, add funds using UPI or bank transfer, and pick your stock or index. That's it.

What is leverage in the context of US trading?
Leverage allows you to make larger trades with less capital. We offer up to 500X. It increases potential gains — and risk — so use it wisely.

Should I invest a lot of money to trade?
No. Start with what you're comfortable with. With 0.10 lot sizes and leverage, even small capital can go a long way.

What are the US market trading hours?
The regular trading session runs from 9:30 AM to 4:00 PM Eastern Time, that's 7:00 PM to 1:30 AM IST. But that's not all, some stocks also trade before and after these hours, depending on the broker. This extended window can start around 1:30 PM IST and go up to 5:30 AM IST, giving traders more flexibility.

How do I stay updated on US markets?
Our platform has tools built in — price alerts, news feeds, and a calendar with economic events. Everything in one place.

What strategies work best for trading US stocks?
Depends on your style. Some prefer holding positions for days, others for minutes. We offer charts, indicators, and analysis tools for whatever fits you.

How do I place my first trade?
Log in with our Android or iOS app, you can also use our Desktop version, choose what you want to trade, set your size and leverage, hit buy or sell, and you're in.
