[A blind brown and white caliby she-cat.]

Detailed Description:

- Figpaw is a wavy furred caliby she-cat. The majority of her fur is white while the rest has brown spots containing stripes. The tips of her ears are tufted. She has three scars on her face. Two over one eye and one over the other. She is missing both her eyes from the jackal attack and therefore blind.

Scars & Accessories: Claw marks over eyes, missing eyes

✧ PERSONALITY ✧

Detailed Description:

- Figbreeze is a remarkably patient cat, always thinking through her actions and allowing others to have time. She is very perceptive towards others' emotions and is very attuned to her remaining senses. This does make her a bit of a perfectionist, though, and she is irked by every little thing that she perceives as "wrong" or "off" or anything less than perfect.
- She has a wonderfully positive aura about her, and despite her past struggles, she is always sweet towards others. She will always encourage her peers with radiant positivity. However, Figbreeze is very self-critical, and is easily discouraged by her own shortcomings. She hides this fact well, and tries not to let it get to her, but sometimes that's a difficult task.
- Especially when her loved ones are involved, Figbreeze is a very protective soul. She would go to any lengths to protect those she cares about. Despite this, she is very soft-spoken, and hardly raises her voice.

✧ HISTORY ✧

Kithood:

- Fig was born to a pair of rogues named Peanut and Karlo. She was their only kit, and they treasured her with their whole hearts. When she was two moons old, they decided to take her out of their den for the first time. They took her to see a passing herd of elephants, and made the mistake of walking among them. Fig was separated from them, and fortunately never saw their bodies. The SunClan patrol who found her, though, did.
- Fig was named Figkit, and was raised by SunClan's kit-watchers for the rest of her kithood. She quickly befriended Thunderkit and Lightningkit, two toms around her age, and lived a relatively happy and normal kithood.

Apprenticeship:

- Figpaw was excited to become Zebrastrike's apprentice, and looked forward to becoming a hunter. She was quick to learn and very willing to train; the perfect type of apprentice.
- When she was nine moons old, jackals attacked SunClan. She desperately tried to protect a young kit named Sandkit. She managed to fend off the jackal, but lost her eyes in the process. Figpaw survived, but at what cost? Nonetheless, she continues to make a valiant effort to train– even if hunting is harder now without her sight.

Trivia:

- Figbreeze has a deathly fear of elephants due to the nature of her parents' deaths.
- Without her sight, Figbreeze hunts using only her ears and the scent of her prey and surroundings.
- While Figbreeze does not think of anybody as an enemy, she's kinda had a resentment toward Lionslayer because Zebraclaw did not shut up about complaints about him when she was an apprentice. Now that they're mates, though, Figbreeze doesn't mind him so much.
