

System Objectives

Username:blue2xo

Trader type:

I want to be a momentum trader. I look at the big picture and focus on the major details, riding in one direction.

Time availability:

I am an active trader and i have from 6 to 8 daily to dedicate to sitting in front of the screen for treading. Therefore, I prefer to be a scalper and a swing trader, considering the time frame for each. I aim to make some partial profits from swing treading and some daily profits from scalping.

Risk profile:

I have between $1000 to $1600 as starting capital, and I'm an average person, neither rich nor poor. I receive some money from time to time. I am risk tolerant and can handle some losses and fluctuations, but losing all my money or a very large loss would have a significant negative impact on my morale. However, I will not give up in this field, even if I lose all my money. I am determined to become one of the best traders, even if it costs me losing more money. I know that hard work and practice will get me to my destination.

Asset class:

The asset classes i want to trade in are (commodities and momentum stocks), because as i mentioned, i will be a swing and scalp trader. Using options and cfds only what do you think !

-
- + I have a problem. And i know it might sound a bit silly, but sometimes i face issues like when i'm winning and the trade is profitable, i exit quickly, although i could have made huge profits if i hadn't exited so quickly. However, when i lose, i lose with greater force than the profit. Sometimes i stay and say the price will adjust or it will rise, but it doesn't. What should i do in this case? What do you advise me to do?