An earnest and polite young man, though lacking in any extraordinary qualities...

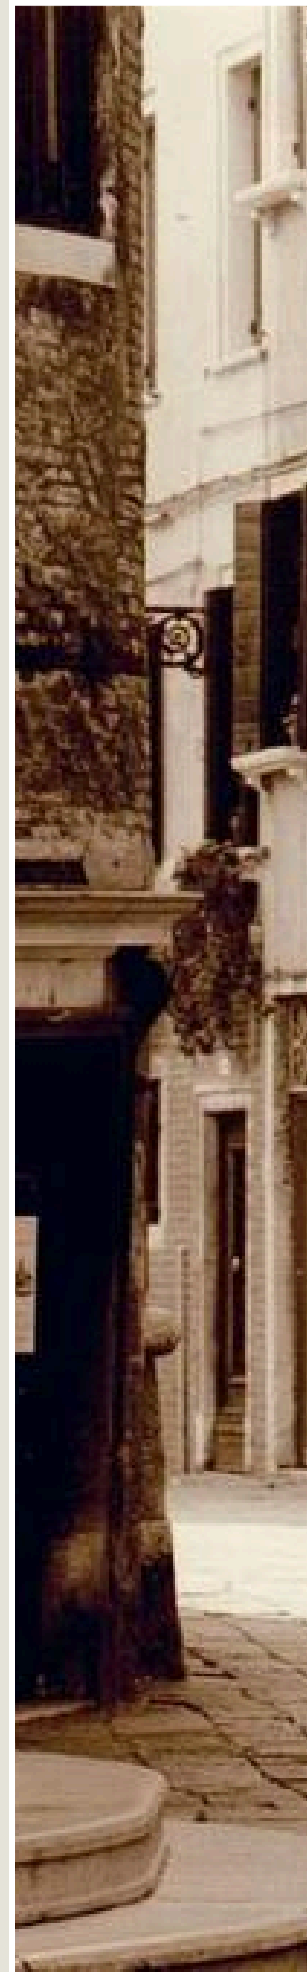

When it comes to first encounters, those who meet Jonathan usually form the same opinion of him: "Ah, well...he was plenty nice!" And then when asked for anything more about him, whether it be charm points or glaring flaws, they usually spend a considerable amount of time thinking before answering with a "Um. I can't really think of anything..."--and it's not in a 'he's perfectly fine' sense, it's more of a 'nothing else stood out about him.'

Since, the fact of the matter is, there is truly, absolutely, nothing fascinating about Jonathan. Nothing quirky, nor insidious, just 100% Jonathan (...yes, let's put it like that.) But--even though there's no part to Jonathan that's really attention-catching per se, everyone can agree that with what he does do, he does it wholeheartedly. For Jonathan, it seems that his actions speak louder than actual words--from the way he puts his all into his work, running this way and that for errands, jotting down notes so intently his tongue sticks out, leans in just a little more forward to catch your every word... Though it is true that maybe there's nothing exciting about the man, perhaps it can be said that you can rely on his consistent reliability instead. Jonathan is the picture example that maybe all one needs is sincerity to make a difference.

Though, this isn't to say that Jonathan's own kindness is something you can scoff at either. The young man puts a lot of effort into displaying good manners, and it's clear that after spending some time with Jonathan that he takes into heavy consideration all those around him. With 'gentlemanly values' coming easy to him, Jonathan's the kind of person who'd offer to carry someone's things for them, or even lend his arm to another while walking up a flight of stairs. For Jonathan, duty is something that extends to even basic courtesy.

...But, on the topic of duty, while it's already clear how much Jonathan prioritizes it from his strong work ethic, this is also conveyed through the importance Jonathan places on his loyalty towards others. Steadfast in his own beliefs, Jonathan's trust, once obtained, is an unwavering one. You can also expect that, as the feeling is comparable to Jonathan feeling indebted to another, that the amount he's willing to do for you increases. (Irina Smolmes, the one who he is the most indebted to, appears to benefit from this aspect the most.)

And honestly, thank goodness Jonathan has all of this to put himself in people's good graces, because if he didn't, perhaps others would find him off-putting instead. Jonathan is plenty polite enough on his own, yes, but for some reason, when it comes to facial expressions...he's rather blank. Many have noted that they've never actually seen the man crack a wide smile, or a total softening of his face--most of the time, the best Jonathan's shown is the small upturn of his lips, and even then those are quite delayed. It's as if emoting doesn't come easily to him, and in turn, it's easy to remark that Jonathan is one who's harder to read than others. It's probably for this reason that Jonathan puts his everything into his actions, relying on his earnest demeanour to not scare off people instead.

Yet, despite all his kindness and good manners, there still remains times when Jonathan is just downright slow on the uptake. This may be a result of the more intellectual side of him: with all that knowledge in his brain, he has no space to accurately interpret jokes, or new sayings and the like. When this happens, you can usually predict a palpable pause in the conversation, as Jonathan will stare at you blankly because he confused himself by trying to understand what you just said literally.

Perhaps these things are also why to some, Jonathan seems a little distant. That while you may exchange pleasantries with him, partake in jovial conversation, work in sync with him—there's something about the young man that feels out of reach. As if genuine human connection is one he just doesn't understand.

...But of course, it's probably nothing. A fleeting feeling, if anything. After all, Jonathan's pretty ordinary, right?

LIKES

- ♡ Freshly Printed Paper :: Nice and warm.
- ♡ Taking Notes :: There's something rhythmic about jotting things down.
- ♡ Porcelain Dolls :: ...He's not sure why for this one.
- ♡ Striped patterns :: All over his clothes. He favours the style!
- ♡ Biking :: A convenient and swift mode of transportation.

DISLIKES

- ✗ Poetry :: He finds it difficult to understand.
- ✗ His Satchel :: Reliable, mostly—if papers weren't always flying out of it.
- ✗ Windy Days :: In tandem with the point above. Help.
- ✗ Lace :: Or anything fancy for that matter. Doesn't want to ruin it.
- ✗ Crowded Streets :: Not inherently a problem. Just prefers tranquility.

BIOGRAPHY

"...For all his life, 'Irina Smolmes' had been the only constant."

EXTRAS

QUOTES

- ▶ "Oh, let me help you with that. -Hm? Yes, of course it's fine."
- ▶ "...'Whatever remains, no matter how improbable, must be the truth.' They're wise words, but, mmm...I suppose I have difficulty understanding them from time to time."

TRIVIA

- ▶ Jonathan's favourite colour is Mulberry.
- ▶ He appears to respond well to any nickname given to him. For Irina, this would be "Jojo."
- ▶ Jonathan works part-time at the popular New Bailey news outlet "The New Bailey Times." One will often see him running around completing errands for them.
- ▶ He has a penchant for cleaning. Now, if only Irina was the same...
- ▶ Occasionally, you'll see him pull things from his cap. (A place of storage...?)
- ▶ Though there are few things that he considers particularly precious to him, the earring he wears is one of them.
- ▶ In relation to the above point, Jonathan wears a locket, but it's tucked inside his shirt so it doesn't fly off when he's on the move.
- ▶ Allegedly...he has very soft hair.

(she/her)

guilty on all accounts of tomfoolery and generally causing a ruckus.

this is a given but i'm a huge OC enthusiast. i love to hear about everyone's ocs and strive to give people an outlet to talk abt them! im your hype man. i will bark and scream because i genuinely am obsessed with your oc !! please tell me all about them.

my favourite thing in the world is developing ocs together with other people. i LOVE exploring character growth and how one's surroundings can affect their development! (this is my fancy way of saying i love hcing/rping by god lets have our ocs interact and grow together!!)

as an aside, i should mention that i love to bully my ocs. not in the angst way, but in the "i will put you in insufferable situations whenever given the chance." i love to do things for the bit.

other than that, though i am this group's mod, please do not feel wary around me !! lets chat! id love to become friends with all of you! tell me about your day and ill tell you about mine, yeehaw!!
