

GMR is more than just a region—it's a home, a community, and a place where Jewish teens find belonging and purpose. My vision for the 2025–2026 programming year is to build on what makes this region so meaningful: strong friendships, passionate leaders, and a shared commitment to Jewish community, and elevate them to the next level.

As N'siah, I strive to listen. I will hold monthly regional office hours open to all members, creating a space to share thoughts, questions, and ideas. I will also prioritize regular coffee, brunch, or Zoom check-ins with each chapter counterpart to build meaningful relationships and offer consistent support. My goal is to be a N'siah who's present, accessible, and always ready to show up for this region.

As N'siah, I strive to care. Leadership is about building relationships. I envision a strong, unified regional board where every leader has the freedom to thrive. Beyond the board, I'll focus on strengthening sisterhood and connection across all BBGs through meaningful bonding, shared resources, mentorship, and peer support.

As N'siah, I strive to take action. I will launch a preterm survey to gather honest feedback from the region and help our board make impactful decisions on what truly matters most to members. To grow GMR, I'll expand outreach through regular tabling at Jewish organizations and hosting "Try BBYO" events, because GMR's strength is truly in our people.

I want every teen in GMR to feel seen, supported, and inspired to take part in something bigger than themselves.
