➤ || &&. The emotions of happiness and love soon left her eyes as she plunged the dagger into both of the women's hearts. Her cold, dark colored hues that once sparkled with joy and excitement, now only reflected the fire of anger and the passion for vengeance. Blood splattered across her skin as she watched the life from the other below start to fade into nothingness. She was silent, but her actions spoke louder than her words could at the moment. The only ounce of emotion that faded from her, left in the form a single tear trailing down her cheek, as she glanced over to the lifeless man beside the newly fresh corpse. That man was her father, and the now, newly dead women ; two alien shapeshifters known as siren. Behind her, her grandparents watched in horror, as they had just seen their granddaughter committed murder. But, what had caused this faithful night to occur ?

Let's rewind a few years toward the beginning, shall we ?

Kyung-Soon is the daughter of the chief of police ; Mi Joo and Nemesis ; The Greek Goddess of Revenge and Divine Retribution. Growing up, she never really knew her mother, but she never really questioned as a child. Because of the long hours that her father had to work at the police station, after she was born, Mi Joon had asked his parents to move in with him, this way they could help him take care and raise Kyung-Soon. As a child, she enjoyed being outside. She loved to play cops and robbers with her grandpa, mainly because she wanted to be like her father when she grew up, she wanted to be a hero like him, for that is how she saw him. Kyung-Soon loved him dearly and she could see that the people of Seoul saw that of him too. She wasn't the best artist, but everyday she would draw a picture of her dad in his police uniform while wearing a cap. He was a true hero, and she wanted to tell him that everyday. But, as the years went on, and she became old enough to start school, she started to make a small group of friends that felt like a second family to her. She would always hang out with them after school and do homework together, they even started their own little study group from upcoming tests, they were inseparable throughout elementary , middle and even high school. They were her best friends, and she was also open to having new friends enter they're little group. They even had their own group chat that they would talk about, well anything. From school work to everyday life.

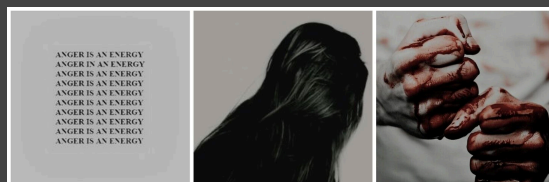

As they reached their final year of high school, that was when everything came crashing down on the young demigod. Many of her friends, including herself, were preparing to take the college entrance exam to enter the college of their choice, not really paying much attention to the world around. But, even as she was focusing on her own studyings, she could also see how lonely her father was. Sure, he had her, her grandfather and grandmother, but he also longed for a wife. He had given online dating a try a few times, but those dates always ended in failure for the police officer. She wanted her father to be happy, that was her second main goal aside from her dream job of becoming a police officer. She wasn't the best at relationships, whether it be for her friends or even herself, and she didn't wanna screw anything up if she were to help her dad get a lover. But, she would try, what could go wrong ? As the days extended into weeks of studying, at home and even on school grounds, Kyung-Soon and her friends had caught the word that there had been a new student from the United States coming to their school. Now, they did find this kind of odd, since it was their senior year, but for all they knew, this new student could also be of a lower classmate too.

Even so, Kyung-Soon wanted to make them feel welcomed at their new school. A few days later, when the new student had arrived at their school, Kyung-Soon had welcomed them with wide open arms, not fully knowing what the student actually was. After getting to know the student, and learning that their mother was also single as well, that this could be a great opportunity to have them come over for dinner and have her dad meet their mother. A few weeks later, their parents hit off. Kyung-Soon was so happy to see her father happy once more. As her father was happy with his new girlfriend, the two daughters had gained closer as friends. During the final month of school, Kyung-Soon was knee deep in studying, so deep that she didn't notice the sudden changes. One night, her father had asked the girlfriend and her daughter to stay the night at their home, this way Kyung-Soon could help the younger girl studying for any finals that she had in class. Happily, they accepted the offer.

It wasn't until midnight, that she had heard a beating on her door. Still half drowsy, Kyung-Soon slipped out of her bed and walked over to open her bedroom door. It was her grandparents, they're room was next to her father's. In such frantic words, they had told her to come quickly to her father's room, for they had heard blood curdling scream emitting from behind the door. She wanted to play it off as a nightmare, but her gut feeling was telling her that something much more sinister was at hand. Agreeing and a bit more awake, she called over to where the sleeping girl should have been in bed next to her, but the space was empty. More alert and her gut feeling worsened, she had raced to her father's study. In a blinding hurry, she found a box that was labeled for her graduation. Tearing the box opened, she saw a beautifully crafted golden dagger. Along with it, was a letter he had written while she was still young. But, she didn't have time to read it, it was time for action. With the dagger in hand, and with each step she took as she ran down the hall, the feeling got sick. Kicking the door open. To her horror, the mother and daughter, hands and face covered in the splattered blood of her now dead father. There, all the happy emotions she once felt, had vanished. Her now cold dark hues glaring dagged at the murders. Once the shapeshifter aliens had caught sight of her, they attacked. It was a long battle, long enough to have reached morning, but she fought back and in the end, one by one, she had plugged the dagger deep into their flesh. The only sound emitted from their dying lips, were screams of agony. Kyung-Soon didn't even flinch.

It wasn't until a year later, she read the letter to find out that her mother Nemesis ; The Greek Goddess of Revenge and Divine Retribution. Years later, she currently lives in California as an assassin for hire.

POWERS & ABILITIES !

> (VENGEANCE EMBODIMENT)

↳ definition : the ability to become the embodiment of vengeance.

Similar to how her mother is, Kyung-Soon acts on the base of equal justices. After the death of her father, she has made it her mission to work as an assassin for hire in hopes of balancing the right and the wrong. She carries with her a blade that was made for her, it was blessed by Nemesis herself in hopes it could help her daughter balance the good aura from the evil in a person.

→ Limitations // N/A

> (EXPERIENCED IN COMBAT)

↳ definition : fighting between armed forces

While she was the daughter of the chief of police, during her youth she did take martial arts lessons. During those lessons, she was able to build up her stamina, to which she is able to withstand in battle for a rather long period of times.

→ Limitations // She will pass out if she extends her physical limit

> (BALANCE)

↳ definition : To be in perfect balance

Not a current ability, but more of a future power that she will unlock. With this ability, Kyung-Soon will be able to have all opposite sides come together and work for a common cause.

→ Limitations // She must be in perfect self balance to do this

> (PUNISHMENT MANIPULATION)

↳ definition : controlling the severity of punishment, changing the type of punishment from any action or even punish actions which usually result in rewards.

This ability allows Kyung-Soon to sense the suitable punishment for the one that is receiving the result for their actions. There's a little hole in the handle of her dagger and when it's held up to the heart of the wrongdoer, she can see the right result for them.

→ Limitations // This ability maybe limited to certain people, as well as might not be able to affect certain punishment Without the help of her mother.

> (AEROKINETIC FLIGHT)

↳ definition : Fly by the air / wind

This mostly stems off that Nemesis was a winged goddess, and even though Kyung-Soon missed that feature, the blessing of her mother, she did gain the ability to fly. This way, she doesn't have her motorcycle with her, she has other means of transportation.

→ Limitations // Similar to her cousin ; Jennie, Kyung-Soon can also be affected by an additional weight and the speeds of the winds.

RELATIONS !

NEMESIS ; MOTHER | ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

↳ Because she had never met her mother physically, she could feel her through her actions and punishments that she sends out. And there are times, where she's sleeping that sometimes she'll meet her in her dreams as well. She knows that she's also watching over her through the wind and her results that she hands out.

MI JOO ; FATHER | ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

She looked up to him as a hero when she was younger, and even still does to this day. He raised her for most of her life, with the help of her grandparents. He wasn't the perfect father, working late nights at the police station and doing paperwork, but she knew that He loved her very much and tried to spend as much time with her as he could have. And even in death, he still watches over her.

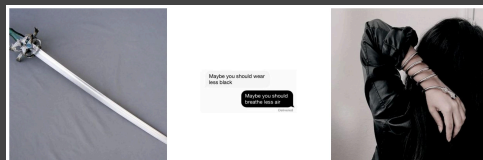

JENNIE ; COUSIN | ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

↳ She met her after the death of her father, with the knowing that something was out there that targeted people like Kyung-Soon, they're grandparents had sent her to the United States to live with her aunt and cousin. Many months went by and she started to show signs of her old self peaking through, but the night before Jennie was set out to graduate from High school, was when they were ambushed by three of the shapeshifting aliens. In the end, Jennie's mother and her aunt sacrificed herself to protect them. The next week, she left the home in hopes that the separation would protect jennie. Still keeps in contact though.

VANESSA ; COUSIN | ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Not a direct cousin, but an extended one on Jennie's side. She really doesn't know much of her, being that she's never in one spot for Very long. But, she did get a chance to meet her once Jennie started college. She could sense that Vanessa was a good soul, and that she could trust her with overseeing Jeenie's training on her abilities and powers.

HEADCANONS !

- She does have a german shepherd named roxy.
- While even if she doesn't talk much, she lets her actions speak for her. Growing up, she saw how people's words could be used and twisted against them to benefit the other being. Whether it was at her school, outside of school or the couple of times she visited her dad at work. She noticed how the words would betray the actions of the person. And so, she wanted to match her own actions with little talking, so that others knew what she exactly meant.
- While she was younger, she did take lessons in taekwondo and martial arts.
- Because of her father being the chief of police, she did take interest in weapon knowledge, knowing what weapon does what, how to counter it, whether it was a long distance or short range, she took a good time to study those categories.
- She can speak Korean and English, and read Greek.
- She does have a pretty big weapons collection ; ranging from swords, daggers, spears, guns, axes, you name it and she probably has it. These are all the ones that she has either acquired from her missions or shows. They're located behind a vault in the cellar of her home for safe keeping. They're not to be used, but to make sure that they don't fall into the wrong hands.
- Instead of interacting with others, she watches people. Seeing who is of pure intentions or who is wearing a mask to hide from their rightful punishment.
- She does enjoy rock and classical music, one she listens to while at the gym to get her bumped up, the other is to relax her after a stressful day.
- She does have quick reflexes, if she feels that she's about to be attacked, then she will flip whoever or whatever it is without a single thought.
- She's always on guard, she believes that, if she were to let her sense down, there's an ambush right around the corner. And she wants to be ready for that.
