

Lack of fall grass could imperil deer if winter turns harsh November 26, 2024 Oregon
Baker City Herald

... “The rain was a little too late.” ... The biologists all said that the scanty fall greenup poses a bigger threat to deer, both mule and white-tailed, than it does to their larger cousins, Rocky Mountain elk... more adept at moving to new habitat ..,