

You're not an average businessman...

Hey Alex, I trust you've been well since my last message.

I like how you shared your weekend with the #setandforget students. From the looks of the videos you posted, it seemed like an absolute blast haha. That was very generous of you to do, but like you said, the honor is truly yours since you get to see your hard-earned strategy improve the lives of others.

Look, I believe you are the best in the game. You've got the best network, the best community, the best program; You've got it all bro!

But there's one thing I feel like is missing... another way of communicating to your audience. If you have the best platform, why are you solely relying on social media marketing to bring in sales?

Email marketing is responsible for 20%-30% of an ecommerce business' revenue which, I can imagine if implemented into your business, will result in an extraordinary increase in profit margins.

I will take care of all the email marketing processes for your business and, for precaution, I will send every email to you (before publishing) to make sure they fit your needs.

With a partnership between the both of us, I truly believe we can leave every other competitor in the dust within months.

If you're free, I'd love to talk about this in further detail at your convenience.
