

Most important message of all time (in the history of humanity) !

We are in a few years lasting fight for survival, or war for our mere survival of our existence, about this planet and its entire planetary life-world !

Especially because the mass media, politicians, etc. are keeping this from us, or in part are not even aware of it, I ask you to let this go virally.. using all the possibilities of the Internet, e-mail distribution lists and from mouth to mouth.. to all friends, acquaintances, family members, colleagues, sport comrades, union and party members, fellow humans of all kinds...

And who likes, together with the questions raised below, to which everyone is invited to reflect on them and to find answers..!

Please take these elaborations seriously, as it can be seen at present for example in Siberia and in the Arctic, or in all the megafires in the last years!

Climate crisis: alarm at record-breaking heatwave in Siberia - Unusually high temperatures in region linked to wildfires, oil spill and moth swarms / 17.06.2020 Damian Carrington

Extract:

Russian towns in the Arctic circle have recorded extraordinary temperatures, with Nizhnyaya Pesha hitting 30C on 9 June and Khatanga, which usually has daytime temperatures of around 0C at this time of year, hitting 25C on 22 May. The previous record was 12C.

XY: Surface permafrost is melting away in Siberia and soon it will be the Arctic subsea permafrost which contains almost a hundred times as much methane as is required to cause a terminal Permian style global extinction event. This will begin in earnest in 2024. Plan your very short life accordingly. || YZ: At any time says Natalia Shakhova (!)

2020 Siberian Heatwave continues / 18.06.2020

Facebook-Comment: Kirk Norring: I would like to point out to everyone here that what is happening in Siberia and Northern Canada is not a heatwave. A heatwave is a weather event where a warm tropical body of air moves into a region and warms the region up. It is largely dependent on the way jet streams move and that body of air only stays for a specific period of time. It's like any weather event. It moves across the land and oceans. That is not what is happening in regards to the heat in the Arctic. This is not a body of warm air that moved into the region. It is warm air that has been generated at those locations.

Think of the Arctic permafrost as being a heater because that is essentially what it is. For us in the mid latitudes, we are going to feel the effects of southerly tropical air PLUS the warm air being generated in the permafrost regions. A double whammy, if you wish. The droughts and subsequent wildfires that will be caused by this are going to be unlike anything we have seen so far. This is not a heatwave. It is a heater. Think along the lines of the warm air that is generated over a pot of boiling water. That heat didn't come from somewhere else. It came from the pot of boiling water. This heater effect means that the heat generated by the release of greenhouse gasses in the thawing permafrost is not going to go away. A heatwave would eventually leave the area. This Arctic heat is there to stay. Just be careful about the wording here because you can unwittingly tell people that the Arctic heat is just a temporary thing.

Research Highlight: Loss of Arctic's Reflective Sea Ice Will Advance Global Warming by 25 Years - Fast mitigation may still avoid complete loss of sea ice / July 22, 2019

Losing the remaining Arctic sea ice and its ability to reflect incoming solar energy back to space would be equivalent to adding one trillion tons of CO2 to the atmosphere, on top of the 2.4 trillion tons emitted since the Industrial Age, according to current and former researchers from Scripps Institution of Oceanography at the University of California San Diego.

Issue:

2 years ago, scientists called for an 'emergency brake' and a 'radical change in the entire way of producing and consuming' at a speed similar to that of world war times!

Prince Charles had the courage last year to proclaim, against the prevailing belief that there still is a "budget", that there are 18 months left (now 1) to save this planet (and our existence). Some scientists assume that at the latest 20 years ago an emergency brake should have been pulled already, that we can be called already now functionally extinct, among other things because of the 'global dimming' effect.

All in all, it can be said that we as humanity are in a mere struggle (or war) for survival, and as any other of those, it depends above all on a - in this case - global, unlimited and universal cooperation and collaboration!

We as humanity organize ourselves as the basis & fundament, via a networked, inextricably linked world financial system - e.g. this complex threatens to collapse if a speculation bubble bursts in America, China or Europe.

In this world financial system, in which a struggle is being fought for the largest possible share of the investment capital of approx. 280 trillion dollars, approx. 500 - it has been ascertained that this struggle can be condensed to 150 of them - largest international corporations and financial institutes are relentlessly facing a tough international, as well as regional-local competition, in which, among other things, unhindered access to, or an uninterrupted supply of raw materials and resources, transit and trade routes to sales markets, etc. is essential. Keywords: trade conflicts+wars, military (peace) interventions, etc.

Peter Brabeck-Letmathe, at that time CEO of Nestlé, explained in the documentary film 'We feed the world' that it is 'like a boxing match, as soon as you stop boxing just a little bit, you begin to die'... what was meant was a monetary economic death, bankruptcy and sell-out to competitors!

Questions:

How can we reach in the shortest time a dissolution of this global competition, which is absolutely indispensable for survival? This is the present question of survival for humanity!

How could such an emergency brake be pulled, how could it be organized in the shortest possible time, which sometime has to be implemented and executed either through deliberate acting, or will it foreseeably happen by the processes of the meanwhile probable self-annihilation in a much more extreme and unpleasant way...!

According to the situation we are in (see links), now a total emergency brake is required!! This means from one day to the next we have to shut down all industries in this world that do not produce for the absolutely most existential.. such as all car industries (including truck & motorcycle factories), aircraft & shipbuilding industries, all military industries, therewith many steel & aluminum factories, etc. so that already a large part of the nuclear and coal+gas power plants can be shut down in a very short time.. also have to be stopped or reduced to the most limited: construction industries & cement factories, electrical industries, tourism industries, animal breeding & fishing industries, wood industries, etc. etc... but which doesn't go together with labor markets, social systems, and especially financial systems, international power structures, competitiveness, etc...

Instead doing renaturations, renaturations, renaturations (creation of irrigation systems for woods & agriculture, for wetlands & moors, biotopes of all kinds, and this at fullest possible speed and on a global scale !

Which however would require constantly new money to be printed.. the salvation of this world cannot be financed or organized with such means.. especially not in the short term to reallocate money globally, to determine who is the big winner and who not, without triggering time-consuming, fierce fights about it...

If not by preparing the Internet in top speed so that the world, reduced to the most essential - key industries, supply & production chains - can be realigned, reorganized and restructured in the shortest possible time, purely by means and on basis of the (globally interconnected) power of voluntariness, completely without monetary means, so that all possible, life-saving catastrophe fighting measures can be initiated and implemented immediately. Despite the fact that the internet has a bad reputation, which is due to the influence of the monetary world system in whose sense it is also misused, this is our last chance.. A hammer can be used to build a house or to destroy it...! This realization has to go around the world in no time!

Please pass this message on, in your own processing, with or without the questions, as part of a snowball system ! Do not let one day pass without being busy to find solutions. In the face of this situation.. have the courage to go beyond the common understanding or acceptance, which has its basis only in the fact that the treatment of contexts is suppressed in media publications! They are covered with, for example, whether the German car industry can be saved with car buyers' premiums or Lufthansa and TUI with Majorca and cruising ship tourists.

PS: To the scientific summarizations of Sam Carana, in the end of a whole team of scientists, even if not of greater importance: 'Sam Carana' is presumably a chosen pseudonym in connection with the figure Cassandra from the Greek mythology, who warned in vain of the doom of Troy, but was not heard...: sa-m ca-ra-na = ca-s-s-an-d-ra !

It is better to die fighting on the battlefields for our life & nature systems than to fade away!

Defeatism, surrender, was never an option for us humans.. no survival war has been given up from the start, even if the enemy is most likely to destroy an entire planetary world in a 'Blitzkrieg' manner.. nonetheless, the attacked people, as far as they had become aware of this danger, always united themselves in the closest and most universal way, putting aside and overcoming everything that stood in the way of this, that had separating influences.. today the entire Earth's population must do so, as well as that the monetary world system, which in the core keeps us in separation from each other, is briefly eliminated and overcome..

It is not we who can control these systems, they control us, precisely by the fact that their urge to concentrate constantly leads to rivalry and ultimately extreme competition for these means.

Not only does it not release the poorer classes from its clutches, above all the rich & super rich are subordinated to it like marionettes.

If this is not recognized and accepted by the rich & super rich in the same way that we have to overcome these systematics as a world in the shortest possible time - and this with the aid of a networking also can, in order to possibly preserve life itself, even if this is altogether a hard, hard fight, which demands the greatest sacrifice of all - this planet is foreseeable and soon as dead as a doornail !!

It is not machines with which we could escape planetary death, it is not a massive population reduction, it is billions of variegated & multi-faceted greening projects executed by a unified and healthy world population!

German billionaire Götz Werner said that 'the stairs must be swept from above'..

in fact, in this situation it is of crucial importance for survival that this is also acknowledged by the (financially) rich classes ! Thereby it is not only about their own life, it is also about that of families and relatives, about their - the entire - all of us surrounding nature !!

The Scottish-American steel magnate Andrew Carnegie (1835 - 1919) stated: “Man who dies .. (financially) rich, dies disgraced.” How rich could we be in preserving this once so variegated planetary lifeworld together with our existence?

The Covid-19-crisis has shown that when the media informs broadly and in detail about a threatening situation, how scientifically worked out emergency measures are respected by the people in a disciplined manner, how industries, companies and businesses that do not belong to the vital key industries can be scaled back or even closed down.

The Covid 19 crisis has also shown that such an emergency brake is neither endured by labor markets, social systems or financial systems over a longer period of time, that all regulatory models structured by the financial systems are in danger of collapsing unless immense amounts of debts are incurred, which in the end have to be repaid through excessive consumption, but could also cause the financial system to crash completely.

PS: All created texts and ideas are completely 'free content'. If parts of them or even all are liked, passages can be copied, used and declared as his or her own. That would even be great.

Now and in the future, as this is currently the question of survival, it is no longer a matter of representatives, shining lights and leadership personalities, but of swarm initiatives, impulses, developments, networking, intelligence, behavior, activities, and that the reality in the perceived truth is correctly recognized, processed and created ..
