A small group of committed citizens - tribes, local watershed councils, and local citizens - took on the dams' owner and won. The Klamath was once the third largest fish run river on the West coast. It may soon be again. To understand how complicated the issue is, read the attached linkhttps://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2021/jun/08/klamath-falls-oregon-protests-ammon-bundy . The far right group is threatening to interfere in the planned dam removal. |

Our willingness to support humanity and people's welfare is one. We just became the first state to have unionized state legislative employees. Our courage to be a role model and be the first is another reason. Finally, the conviction to stand by our progressive values is another reason. With this unionization Oregon nailed all these reasons to be proud of Oregon.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
