Why should I take this course?

Because you probably won't find another course out there on a similar topic with similar length and detail. This course covers a wide range of topics on building an e-commerce website. It is a step-by-step guide with most of the code hand typing.

There are students from my other courses complaining that if I copy and paste the code and then explain it, though it can save some time, students will lose track and drive. That's why I'm developing stuff in this course from scratch and step-by-step.
