

1. Make as many corrections as you can to the sentences. The first one has been done as an example. For the last two, create sentences of your own that contain a few mistakes which you will share with your group members, who will attempt to correct them. Don't make them too obvious and be sure you are able to offer a proper explanation of the corrections.

Original	As with another social problems such poverty and addiction. The public perception of the homelessness is extremely negative and often quite misguided or based false information.
Edited	As with other social problems like poverty and addiction, the public perception of the homeless is extremely negative and often quite misguided or based on false information.

a.

Original	This could be behaviour someone, often a parent, is degrading, humiliating, in general discouraging an individual.
Edited

b.

Original	In case, they may just have very bad relationship with their parents or caregivers. And feel restricted by the rules imposed them or the inability effectively communicate together.
Edited

c.

Original	Who remains on the street, now without any means of support and in many cases a lack of education from school as well. Turn to illegal activities to ensure they have enough money to live their lives.
Edited

d.

Original	Some just start drinking or take drugs for fun, results in their becoming addicted and starting down the path that see them sacrifice relationships and careers.
Edited

e.

Original	Statistically, as many 80% of chronic homelessness, that is those who are on the street for extended period of time, are addict to some substance, and for youth only, this is 50% (Trypuc, B., & Robinson, J, 2009).
Edited

f.

Original	Merson and Wilson report that one of the main contributors to homelessness is the inability to afford ever increasing apartment rental prices (2010).
Edited

g.

Original Edited

h.

Original
Edited	