This is a PAS framework email targeting all CS2 players who want to become better at the game. The main purpose of this email is to intrigue them and make them get the course.

Email subject: Secrets that kept you away from becoming a CS2 PRO player

Have you ever thought about what it's like to actually be good at the game?

That joy when you open your past match history and see nothing but green, with your name at the top scoreboard.

That self-pride when your Steam profile is flooded with comments accusing you of cheating.

Is there a greater feeling?

And then, imagine receiving a friend invite on Faceit from none other but m0NESY himself?

You'd be on cloud nine, wouldn't you?

Have you given a thought to what sets you apart from a professional player?

It's not just aim as many believe, it's a deep understanding of the game.

What's the use of aim if you don't even understand the economy, rotations, timings, and many more things?

Pro players like S1mple, Zywoo, and Ropz reached that level because they had coaches, and people who taught them all the secrets of the game.

So why you can't have one?

Pawel who's been a coach since 2015, and played against players like Niko, rain, and many more, is here to share all his knowledge.

So if you want to approach CS2 differently, not just by endlessly grinding DM servers but by truly understanding how the game works,
