Lust Takes Hold of Heaven

Magical Quest System Unveiled

The Angel Lust shows off the magical Quest System.

Ace reporter Dante Gulliver here meeting with the very sultry Lust in Heaven's Library.

Lust: Hello darling, how are you?" By the way, did you get ALL the photos you needed?"

Dante: Sure.. <watches her lasciviously> but I am always up for doing a private photo shoot... I hear you received a promotion. Can you tell me about it?"

Lust: <Talks for 30 minutes about...things>

Dante: <Smiles vacantly eyes following the curves of her body finally realizing she is talking> Sorry, what did you say Miss Lust...

Lust: <Trying not to smack Dante, speaks through gritted teeth> I am an archangel and Divine Scroll Keeper of this beautiful library.

Dante: So there are lots of amazing 'mounds' of books in this library, Miss Lust... I can only imagine how 'hard' it is to sort through them all. They all you must need to 'wet' your whistle once you have been 'fingering' through a few pages... am I right Miss Lust?

Lust: Dante, are you trying to flip through MY 'hard' pages and get your fingers wet?

Dante: No...No Miss Lust I assure you the only thing hard... here is my quill and maybe my cock... So tell me about these scrolls... I heard you had developed a new type of questing system.

Lust: <Leans back into her chair noticing his semi...> Ahem... Yes, the scroll system allows the angels to take on new quests. They simply tap the middle of this table and a scroll will appear in their hands. (They'll have to add it from their inventory) Then, read what they have to do. There are a total of 10 different quest scrolls. <her eyes back down to his semi.. smirking.>

Dante: <Shifts uncomfortably lowering his notepad to cover his shame> These quests... they don't need a quest giver... so how do they work.. Do I have to kill a dragon or free all the prisoners in hell? What needs to be done and who do I turn them into to get my soul coin reward?"

Lust: The scrolls are enchanted to give directions. I failed to mention that once the receiver has completed their quest, they can come back with their scroll and turn in the quest to myself or Christopher or Fyntik.

Dante: So this is a magically operated quest giving system....that is wonderful Miss Lust.

Lust: Yes, it is a beautiful system designed by Christopher and I helped him with the small details. The scrolls are strictly for Angels and Mortals. If a demon were to get their hands on them, the scroll disintegrates into thin air.

Dante: <Looks curiously at the table> Do you mind if I try out a quest Miss Lust? <Lust nods>

<Dante carefully chooses a quest scroll unrolling it and reading it aloud> Hmmmm this one says I must have passionate wild sex on the library table with the nearest angel named Lust... wow that is oddly specific but if that's the quest then who am I to question fate... <Quickly rolls up the scroll and tucks it away... with a big grin.>

Lust: <Gasps, then forms a smirk on her face> That's not one of the quests. Nice try though and I give you an A for effort... <Seductive wink>

BDSM Class 2: Lady Jadu Teaches Understanding the RL / SL Connection

Lady Jadu is large & in charge (pic from Mistress Nixta)

Lady Jadu: The title of today's class "But it's Only Roleplay...Not Real???" In the past couple of weeks, there have been questions asked about this very subject.

Basically, the questions are around SL versus RL "But it's not really Hell. Why do I have to be careful?" And "This is online not real!" A cyber/virtual/online bdsm interaction can indeed be very real.

First let's talk a bit about your brain. The mind is the largest sexual organ in humans. Playing in Pandemonium, our bdsm interactions deal directly with our minds as we are creating the scenario. Because of this, one can create a mental and emotional bond much faster online. That is a positive thing!

This enhances the feeling of emotional closeness to the person you are interacting with and strengthens the mental bond. This bond is very real to the one who feels it and being an avatar on a screen offers a sense of anonymity that allows people to open up faster and deeper than they would in a face to face conversation.

Lady Jadu: But you also open yourself up to be hurt. How many can relate to that feeling when you are really vibing in a scene with someone and you are all in your feelings, and then they are gone.

They log off and you feel bad. Awful. Cranky Not fun anymore. And maybe they don't log in for a couple of days and it is confusing?

Yes, it is. And that feeling is called "drop". In the kink world, we hear it referred to as Domme drop or sub drop, and both are VERY real.

Dante: Lady Jadu I have a question. When you talk about the sensuality of play and the connection of the mind, are you saying the emotional connection and intensity of RL is compatible with the mental/emotional stimulation one can feel in SL?"

Lady Jadu: Yes. I am Dante. I can say personally I get very real emotional feelings when I play in SL I think the emotional pieces blur or blend into both SL and RL.

And those feelings can be positive or negative. And I was talking about negative before. So back to it! Drop is an emotional and physical low, that begins anywhere from a few hours to a few days after an emotionally charged scene. All the dopamine and endorphins in your brain are all in. And when it ends badly, it hurts. This hurt lasts hours to weeks.

You need to play responsibly. Just because you are not physically close does not mean you can forego the three linchpins of BDSM: to always play safely, sanely, and consensually.

In many RL communities in real life, bdsm is a taboo and this is true in most parts of the world. However in Pandemonium, it is expected! It is one of the basis for the entire SIM. Mortal slaves and cruel overlords. Here, we all speak openly about our likes, dislikes, and experiences with other players, both good and bad.

And this is the important part where checkins are SO important. Because here's the thing, you may not know how the person behind the avatar is feeling after a scene, so it is very important to ask, and check in

Lady Jadu: In Pandemonium, you control your avatar. You control the physical actions, and the emotional emotes. But there is a personal side to this. You may have no control over how your mind, in the real world, is feeling or any other body or mind effects that you get.

Keren: May I?

Lady Jadu: You may Keren.

Keren: Last couple days I was going to prison to listen to some RPs due to a torturer contest :-)) and really I was shocked.. In those RPs I witnessed the victim was supposed to die in first minutes of torture. I am talking about dismembering, mutilation, destroying sexual organs, full skinning etc... It was like we are not in a circle of lust but in some deeper circle like total brutality.. Nothing in those plays were even close to BDSM.. I know it's all good if limits allow it but it also pushes many BDSM plays from that place..

Lady Jadu: Well, consider the contest. I work in Prison, so often MANY sexual roleplays go on even at the same time. I think that for this contest, that kind of brutality was expected, but good observation.

Consent occurs when one person voluntarily agrees to the proposal or desires of another. In Pandemonium, there is an expectation of consent because you are here of your own free will. Angels and Demons will fight and capture each other and do all kinds of nasty things to each other, and mortals will be slaves.

Lady Jadu: Safewords can be used and negotiated. My favorites are RED to stop and YELLOW to pause and slow down. In a Pandemonium roleplay, you can use safewords. I suggest putting them in your profile and HUD. And please do bring them up before the scene. If you need to use the safeword, just type in it public or private chat, or both. And both parties in the scene should talk and make sure everything is ok.

Aftercare, YES this is a MUST after a scene is played out even when it is online! Due to the nature of these relationships and the severity of them, as they are JUST as serious as in person ones, you still should be a legal consenting adult as there are still physical/emotional ramifications of engaging in bdsm even when it is in an online medium.

Lady Jadu: Whatever is done, or scene performed, you must still aftercare. It is still possible to drop for the Dom or sub after these sessions and so if you do not have the time to invest in the Aftercare You should NOT BE DOING THE SCENE.

Remember that you can talk about after care before a scene. If someone is not willing to put in the time after a scene (Domme or sub) that is a huge red flag. You deserve care, you NEED it, and it being done online does not make it any less.

Here is an important suggestion. Don't play a dominant role with others if you are impaired. Impaired can be drinking, drugs, tired, emotional. There are lots of ways to be impaired. Being impaired can cause a few negative things.

Sadi: While I agree that aftercare should be given after a scene... I want to point out that Dom and Sub drop can still happen with after care and can happen days and even weeks later. Any type of interaction that we have can subconsciously awaken old wounds, or come out of the blue whether its intense sadness, loneliness, euphoria, Love. Etc.. So be cognizant that drop can still happen with or without aftercare for extended periods after, as we process things differently.

Lady Jadu: Yes, Sadi! 100% true. I love that you said this!!! So I will wrap up and then open the floor for other questions or thoughts. You all have been AWESOME! I appreciate the participation. So, we all have that one thing that gets us off. We are here likely because kink and bdsm get us all off. Because of this, we never have to look too far to play which is nice. Bonds and relationships are real & that enhances play in SL.

With those fun things also come responsibilities for others. If you play with the understanding that all avatars are more than just the on screen representation, you are doing it right. I want to thank everyone for attending the class. I always want class to be a place where you can learn new things, then use them in real RP situations!

The BDSM Class will meet every Tuesday at 3PM SLT in Hell's Circle. I hope to see you there.
