

Bluebird sorted through the fabrics she had on hand, this year was her first Halloween in such a long time that she'd be spending with other Plush Dragons.

Her costume had to be fabulous, it was a must! Her new person had offered to bring her costume shopping but nothing in the stores would look decent, her outfit had to be pawmade!

Years ago, her second person had taught her to sew so she could fix herself if she encountered rips and tears on her journey. She never thought she'd be using the skill for something so normal as a costume.

Shaking out the right fabrics Bluebird started to cut along them in a design she had in her head. It was almost a surprise that this came to her so easily when so many other things didn't. She found herself smiling to herself as she worked.

Bluebird blinked suddenly with a cookie halfway to her mouth, at some point her person had walked with a plate of snacks. She turned to the human sitting beside them and rubbed her head against them in thanks.

"Awww what a sweet bean you are," Her person coo'd and pet Bluebird's head gently.

Bluebird nodded. She WAS a sweet bean but right now she had to focus! Swishing her tail she started to pin and measure and sew like a Plush Dragon possessed as the hours raced by.

Before she knew it days had passed but now she had a wonderful magician costume laid out in front of her! It fit like a dream and she felt simply magical in it!!

She was ready for Halloween!
