

Student Blog Post

Hello, young Wildcats, or should I say cubs? As your first introduction to the culture here at Villanova University, we want to offer you some support for your understandably nervous (but excited!) higher education jitters. Trust me when I say you have nothing but good times ahead of you, which we will help to make sure go as smoothly as possible. There is nothing like the first day of school, am I right?

Within your grasp are our campus resources; those will include the highly encouraged orientation days leading up to the first day of classes. We all know the saying “respect your elders”, and in this case, they are only a few years older than you and well-versed in your curiosities of college life. Take a stroll around campus and unleash those burning questions (yes, even those ones) so you can focus on what is really important; using your big brains for the mass amounts of achievements you will create here.

On a more serious note, we understand that school comes first in many of your daily decisions, so contact student resources for qualms regarding credit transfers, club expositions, on-campus living, and much more. Safety is our number one priority, as well as making sure you have everything you need to succeed here at Villanova University. Contact information will be listed at the bottom of this email.

Lastly, we congratulate and welcome you with open arms into this institution where your ideas are encouraged to bring out the best in what our community has to offer, as President Peter M. Donohue defines success, “To foster knowledge without a concern for human connection, or absent a concern for how such knowledge can “ignite change” in our communities is, simply put, inadequate and hollow.” Thank you for your commitment to igniting the light within every Wildcat, and we are always rooting for you.

Sincerely,

Morgan Pedrama
