The Wind and the Sun
(Aesop's Fable)

The wind and the sun argued one day which one was the stronger. Spotting a man travelling on the road, they sported a challenge to see which one could remove the coat from the man's back the quickest.

The wind began. He blew strong gusts of air, so strong that the man could barely walk against them. But the man clutched his coat tight against him. Then, the wind blew harder and longer. The harder the wind blew, the tighter the man held his coat against him. The wind blew until he was tired, but he could not remove the coat from the man's back.

It was now the sun's turn. He gently sent his beams upon the traveller. The sun did very little, but quietly shone upon his head and back until the man became so warm that he took off his coat and headed for the nearest shady tree.

The Rainbow
By Christina Rossetti

Boats sail on the rivers,
And ships sail on the seas;
But clouds that sail across the sky
Are prettier than these.

Listening Texts

It was a cold morning by the beach. Totoy and some of his friends were walking along the shore. Their small feet dug small holes in the sand as they walked. Totoy noticed something moving in one of the holes. Looking closely, it was a tiny crab trembling in the cold. "Sorry, little crab. Go, get yourself warmer deep into your haven," said Toto
