

How to Participate:

- 1. I have to first list a prompt. This will be in the last week of the month for the following month.
- 2. If you like it, sign up by leaving your name, blog URL, and a date you can post in the table. Please do not sign up for a date that has already been claimed.
- 3. In your post, link back to the chain page. You may want to update the table with your post link.
- 4. (Optional) At the end of each month I send out a notification with the upcoming prompt. If you want, you can subscribe here.

#5: Now to March 31: Pick a setting, real or fictional, and share why you love it. Feel free to include photos, poems, stories, etc :)

Name	Link	Date

#4: December 1- January 31: Prompt: Similar to exchanged holiday letters between friends, I am asking participants to pick a character you have “met” this year (either in your own works or something you have read) and write them a letter. This letter can be long or short, poetic or aggressive-- after all, please do not limit yourself to protagonists, feel free to write your letter to an antagonist or a minor character.

Name	Link	Date

#3: November 1-30: Prompt: This prompt centers around the theme of valuable lessons, especially that we have taken away from books. You might answer: What is the coolest thing you have taken away from a book you have read? What sorts of things do your characters learn, as embedded in a story you have written? Or, what sort of message do you want to share with others, either in writing or through your own life?

#2: July 6- 31 Prompt: Pick up any character (or several characters) youve created or read about and place them in either a) the midst of a well- known historical event or b) in the setting of a popular dystopia. Have you ever imagined yourself as a civil war nurse? Peeta sinking on the Titanic? Hermoine in the Moral Instruments? Now's your chance to tell us all about it!

#1: May 17 - June 12 Prompt: There are all sorts of characters that we create and read about, but like people in real life, we are only drawn to some. What makes you love or hate a character? What do you love about your favorite character(s) or those that you have read about in a book? You can talk about one of your own characters you really relate to, or I don't care, those in a TV show you watched as a kid. Tell us about why you are going to name your kid after Blues Clues when you grow up, if thats something that interests you.
