THE RULES

Types of bullying & harassment

Bullying and/or harassment is not to be tolerated, this can come in many forms, verbal, physical, social (gossip, rumours, exclusion, etc), just to name the main few. Bullying & harassment can be based on:

- Race
- Sexual orientation
- Gender
- Sex
- Disability
- Age
- Economics (monday, way of living, etc)
- Social (status included)
- Appearance
- Any form of differences between people
- And many more

Responsibilities

Government

BenneGov has the responsibility of setting an example for the world by not tolerating or promoting any form of bullying or harassment, and must act when it happens.

Private & public organisations (e.g. schools, employers, healthcare, etc)

Have the responsibility of setting clear rules and expectations for anyone who works at or attends the organisation. They must act if bullying or harassment takes place.

Individuals

Must treat everyone with dignity and respect (excluding owen of course), if they see any bullying or harassment they should call whoevers committing it out for it. If they can't solve the problem themselves, involve the police.

Police powers

The police have the powers to do whatever they see fit until the Lord can hand down a verdict.

The Lords powers

The Lord has the ability to prosecute individuals or institutions for not acting or causing bullying and or harassment. He can use his usual powers to punish an individual or organisation.
