

Hey there, Southview friends and family!

We've been thinking a lot lately, and we've noticed something that we wanted to chat with you about openly and honestly. We all know how much fun our school events are — they're the moments our kids look forward to most, the memories families cherish, and the traditions that make our school community so special.

But here's the challenge: planning these activities takes time, and with only a handful of parents helping, it's becoming harder to keep everything going. You see, the wonderful parents who have supported council for years are starting to see their children move on, and we'd love to welcome more voices, ideas, and helping hands to keep the fun alive.

Did you know: being part of Parent Council isn't scary (we promise!). There's no expectation to take on an official position or big responsibility. You're welcome to join simply as a community member, share your ideas, or pitch in when you can. Even a little time makes a big difference!

These activities enrich our children's lives, bring families together, and build the kind of community we all want for our kids. And the more people who get involved, the easier (and more fun!) it is to make them happen.

Whether it's helping at an event, volunteering for hot lunch, sharing your ideas, or just spreading the good word, every contribution counts. Together, we can make sure our kids have the best possible school experience and continue to build the special Southview memories they'll carry with them forever.

So, what do you say — are you in? We'd absolutely love to have you!
