IPAA will provide the schedule

Important:

- Never spray anything directly onto a keyboard! Even plain water will trickle where it should not go. Never use products containing bleach.
- Wash your hands. It's best to avoid cleaning the keyboard, and clean your hands. Use hand sanitiser before and after your practice, and avoid touching your face in between.
- For historic keyboards, where the keys are made of (e.g.) bone, ebony or ivory, make up a solution of plain water with a little added soap, dampen a cloth with the solution and use with care.
- For more modern instruments, Dettol spray (or other household disinfectant – see below – suitably diluted) can also be used on a cloth.
- Allow five minutes for the treatment to work.
