The Origin of WaterWays

My name is Krystal Diamond, known as Waterways. I am from Ocean Blues where everyone is a mermaid. I am fighting for clean water and sanitation and life below water by using my powers to move objects, transport, make things disappear, and by touching water to make it clean. Ever since I was young I have been helpful around Ocean Blues and courageous to meet new animals and other animals.

Living in Ocean Blues is fun and interesting. Every day I play with my friends and we race through the amazing reefs. I always love to see the colorful fish. Life in the Blues can be a little hard because we as mermaids can not get caught by fishermen and stay away from the deep part of the sea. Our parents told us a story when we were young that one time this group of mermaids went to discover the deep sea but they never came back. Since that day I have never thought about going down there. My parents never let us on land unless it was night time because we had to keep this secret. Which was to never let humans see us transition. Other than those guidelines, living in ocean blues is amazing and I love it here.

One day me and my family were swimming to a gathering to pick the new queen and on the way back home after deciding the new queen trash was dumped in the water by humans. While trash was being dumped my family and I was trying to dodge the trash. My brother Tim got caught up in the reef and the trash fell on him. My father went to go save my brother while my mother and I kept going. When we got home our home was destroyed and the water was very dirty it was hard to see. So, my family and I had to relocate.

When I was heading to our new home, I saw this glowing seashell and I picked it up. When I picked it up I opened it and it shined so bright that it knocked me unconscious. I finally woke up and felt overpowered like I was so powered up that I kept transporting until I just thought about just going home and then arrived. I told my parents what happened and then my parents found this origination that could find out what was wrong with me. When I got there I met Telepathy Tiff, Maddy Man, and Weather girl. And they helped the world with different problems around the world. So I thought that I could help get my home clean again by using my powers but I had to pass this test to see what kind of powers I had.

After the test I discovered that not only I can transport but I can move objects with my mind, make things disappear in a snap, and make water clean. The organization called Supernatural asked if I wanted to work with them and go on missions. I thought about how much I loved Ocean Blues so I said YES! Ever since then life has been a journey.
