Second-born boys are more likely to get into trouble than their siblings.

Picasso would carry around a revolver loaded with blanks and fire at people he found dull.

The Queen's favourite song is ABBA's "Dancing Queen".

Word of the day: NYCHTHEMERON - a period of 24 hours; used to avoid confusion between "day" meaning daylight and "day" meaning 24 hours

Adolf Hitler was Time Person of the Year in 1938 and he was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize in 1939.

When two people have a conversation, even if they are complete strangers, their brainwaves synchronise

The term bootlegging comes from the practice of 19th century smugglers hiding bottles of booze in their boots.

Word of the day: HURKLE-DURKLE - (Scottish) to lie in bed or lounge around when you should be up and about.

Herrings produce air bubbles from their rectums, called FRT's - fast repetitive ticks, thought to aid in shoals keeping together after dark

A fool looks for dung where the cow never browsed. AFRICAN PROVERB

Crocodile dung was used as a contraceptive in the Egyptian Middle Kingdom.

At some Highland Games in France a giant champagne cork is tossed instead of a caber.

Swearing is not a sign of a limited vocabulary; people who swear a lot are actually more fluent in English than those who do not.

Word of the day: DYSANIA - the state of finding it hard to get out of bed in the morning

Students with acne have better grades than students without acne.

Word of the day: AMAINIRIS (Irish Gaelic) - the day after the day after tomorrow

Word of the day: DUNANDUNATE - to overuse a word that has recently been added to your own vocabulary.

The US military spends almost $42 million a year on Viagra.

Scarrmucci I'm going to have to let you go Let me go? I will not let me go! Let me go, I will not let me go..Fandango etc... (Milton Jones)

No matter how fast light travels it finds the darkness has always got there first, and is waiting for it. – TERRY PRATCHETT

ANATIDAEPHOBIA - The fear that somehow, somewhere, a duck is watching you. – GARY LARSON
Top of Form

A group of slugs is called a cornucopia.
The chairman of a corporation is four times more likely to be a psychopath than the caretaker.

A marriage is always made up of two people who are prepared to swear that only the other one snores. – TERRY PRATCHETT

There is no such thing on earth as an uninteresting subject; the only thing that can exist is an uninterested person. - G. K. CHESTERTON