Number Grid and Beat Privacy Policy

This policy explains how the Number Grid & Beat iPhone app handles your data. Effective 7 November 2026.

Data in the app

The app saves your sound setting, best times, and your last 50 rounds on your device. The app does not send this data to us unless you join the global ranking, described below. To remove this data from your iPhone, delete the app. Device backups may retain copies until you remove them through your backup settings.

Global ranking (optional)

The global ranking is optional and does not require an account. If you join it, the app sends the following to our ranking database: the nickname you choose; the country you choose, which is pre-filled from your device's region setting and can be set to "Not shown"; your best time for each grid size; and a random player ID created by the app.

Your nickname, country, best times, and rank are shown publicly to other users of the app. The player ID is not shown to other users and is not linked to your Apple ID, name, email address, or device identifiers. The app keeps the player ID in your iPhone's Keychain so that it remains after you delete and reinstall the app, which lets the app restore your nickname.

The ranking database is hosted by Supabase. The Supabase Privacy Policy is available at https://supabase.com/privacy. We may remove nicknames that are offensive or that impersonate others.

To delete your ranking data, open the nickname screen in the app and tap "Remove me from the ranking". This deletes your nickname, country, and times from the database. You can also email learnfreeapp@gmail.com with your nickname to request deletion. If you do not remove your data, we keep it while the ranking is available.

In-app purchases

Optional coffee tips are processed by Apple through the App Store. We do not receive your payment card details. Apple's handling of purchase information is governed by its own privacy policy.
