HL: New Turn-Key Solution for Fuel Haulers to grow your fleet and maximize profits by ensuring Operational Efficiency in 2024.

Sub HL: So you can be sure you never lose documents or miss any deliveries.

Find out how an Illinois fuel hauler grew his company to 50+ trucks and how you can do the same!

The fuel industry can be brutal when logistics go wrong. This can lead to cross dropping and costly spills, costing thousands to remedy.

Now, there's a solution eliminating any chance of cross dropping without using the pen and paper method.

John, an Illinois fuel hauler, drove a truck for 12 years. He handled all of the dispatching, ordering, communications with distributors and station owners on a daily basis.

He spent those years of his career not only managing operations and dispatching, but also working in the field driving and delivering fuel in the bustling Chicago/Northern Indiana market.

His story highlights challenges his company faced. His manual method of running his business proved to be unmanageable. He could not keep up with the demand, billing, errors, drivers, staff and more.

Through these experiences John realized that there had to be a better, more efficient way to manage the many different facets of his business.

John wasn't able to keep up with growth. He had many employees doing manual tasks for hours every day. His team struggled keeping stations from running out of fuel, constantly calling each station many times daily to check their fuel inventory levels. This led to decreased profits and lower customer satisfaction.

He knew something had to change. This led him to create Digital Fuel Solutions which allowed him to work on his business not in his business.

In 1999, John developed his first dispatching solution on Microsoft Excel. The following year, he built his second version on Microsoft Access, and continued to update this for versions three through five. The sixth and current version of DFS went fully active in 2007 and has excelled in every task. These years of dedication ensure that the final product is of the highest quality and is as easy to use as possible.

Which led to helping fuel haulers all around America!

"Your software has been a life changer for us. We wouldn't have been able to travel around the country following our daughter playing college softball without it. The company ran smoothly wherever we were. It has been a pleasure working with you. You are excellent at what you do and have walked me through some weird stuff with ease. We will forever recommend your company!"
