

With an incredible knack for writing deep meaningful songs with choruses that can stick with you for days, Nadia Sheikh's journey so far has been quite the ride. From supporting Stereophonics across 19 dates of their European Kind tour, including sold-out Manchester Arena and Cardiff Arena shows; to warming up the crowd for PJ Harvey at the Momentos Alhambra stage of Noches del Botánico (Madrid), to gracing stages at festivals like Glastonbury, Isle Of Wight, Kendal Calling, Y Not, FIB (Benicassim Festival) and performing on Spanish national TV for Los Conciertos de Radio 3.

Having released various EPs independently, the half British/Spanish artist has always found a place of eclectic connection between her emotive and intimate songwriting, full of musical and lyrical depth, and anthemic guitar driven sounds, creating a concoction of raw but fragile beauty fuelled by her pop sensibility. Her songs have amassed a tonne of support from the likes of BBC Radio 1, BBC 6 Music, Radio X, Radio 3 (Spain), Planet Rock, CLASH Magazine, Rolling Stone France, Line of Best Fit and Fresh On The Net to name a few.

Nadia's new EP "Done & Dusted" and Spanish alt version "Dicho & Hecho" has been championed by the likes of Steve Lamacq and Chris Hawkins (BBC 6 Music), John Kennedy (Radio X), Antyradio (PL), has landed editorial support from Spotify's Fresh Finds, Notable and Christmas Is Coming, Apple's New In Alternative and New In Pop, Deezer editorial and blogs like Fresh on The Net. 2025 has been a year full of highlights, supporting Bastille at The Brighton Centre, performing at Coldplay's Fan Zone at Wembley Stadium, performing at NXNE festival in Toronto, Canada (supported by PRS Foundation's International Showcase Fund) and opening for Texas at Noches del Botánico in Madrid at the end of June, as well as having her original song "The Start of December" featured on Hallmark US's new show Twelve Dates Till' Christmas.

2026 started with a bang with a stall at Tim Burgess' London Merch Market at Troxy, a sync placement on Love Island and a headline show at The Water Rats.
