IT Review of Architecture and Design Community of Practice

Mission and Purpose

The IT Review of Architecture and Design Community of Practice (IT-RAD-Community) is an informal group, open to all UC Berkeley employees, students and extended colleagues, that provides cross-technical review of infrastructure, architecture, applications, platforms, and services for the development of secure and robust IT environments. When any campus IT group discusses these topics, presentations to the IT-RAD-Community can be an avenue to engage with the broader campus community and receive feedback.

Guiding Principles

Inclusive, innovative, collaborative, cross-cutting (staff/faculty/student, interdisciplinary). Listen to each other. Show respect. We all agree to adhere to UC Berkeley IT's Core Values. The IT-RAD-Community is open to anyone. Sessions will be live captioned and recorded. Please submit any accommodation needs at least 4 days before the meeting to it-rad-community-planners@berkeley.edu

Participant Opportunities

- Actively participate in a 1-hour meeting, frequency determined by the participants
- The meeting will be videoconference-enabled
- If unable to attend, watch the recording and review the notes and topics, provide feedback (Optional)
- Ability to present and describe your team's processes, procedures and tools to the IT-RAD-Community (Optional)
- Ability to bring topics back to your team, discuss them, and provide team feedback at future IT-RAD-Community meetings (Optional)
- Opportunities to facilitate discussion topics during a given meeting (Optional)

Previous Meetings

The presentations and recordings of previous meetings can be found in this folder.

IT-RAD Meeting Chairs

- Terri Kouba
- Jason Christopher
- Bill Allison

To join the IT-RAD-Community, send email to it-rad-community+subscribe@lists.berkeley.edu
To submit a question for the IT-RAD-Community organizers, send email to it-rad-community-planners@berkeley.edu