

Angels Take 2 Titles but Remain in Slump

Kara Remains Skeptical

Kara Monaco had mixed feelings after Oktoberfest Aftermath. The Centerfold Angels left Germany with Lightweight and Heavyweight titles but her fighters were still struggling. With a sub-par 13 wins in Australia, Kara felt that it couldn't get any worse but her fighters proved her wrong again. It wasn't the losses that was bothering Kara, it was the way in which her fighters were losing. Sara Jean Underwood, Gemma Lee Farrell, and Nikki Leigh were on the losing end of horrible beatings. Hometown favorite Kennedy Summers was easily beaten by Sophia Monk after dominating their previous fight and Raquel Pomplun lost after pummeling Amber Heard only to get caught on Amber's only landed punch.

Silver Linings

After all the doom and gloom there were some silver linings. Jessa Hinton remained undefeated and successfully defended her Lightweight title while Victoria Silvstedt shocked the UCC by beating Queen of the Cage's Gabrielle Reece. The Angels also backed up all the smack by taking both fights against their hated rivals. Kimberly Phillips knocked out Emily DiDonato and Ana Cheri took everything Lais Ribero had to give and pulled off a unanimous decision win putting to rest Lais's claims that she would easily win. The Centerfold Angels continue to have a war of words with Death by Bikini and fortunately for all involved this hasn't escalated outside the cage. The Angels refuse to be pushed around by the arrogant Bikini Models. DBB will continue to show off their bodies on exotic locations while being catered to by a staff of servants but the Angels want them to know that you can't hide your flaws behind bikini straps and clever lighting so each Angels decided to show off their bodies au natural. This is us, nothing to hide and nothing to be ashamed of.

The Angels will go back to work and look to improve and win some titles in the 2nd Tournament Series. Despite winning 41 while only losing 13, the Angels only won 3 titles while falling short in 8 others. A lot of work lay ahead as the Angels will need to prepare for the back to back to back to back fights needed to win a tournament belt.

Heavyweights

Augustiner-Braustuben Brewery (Munich, Germany)

Victoria Silvstedt (9-1) vs Gabrielle Reece (Queens of the Cage) Title Fight

Nobody was giving me a shot against Gabrielle Reece. She took an early loss and has strung together 7 very impressive wins and won the Heavyweight title against the seemingly unbeatable Tatyana Chernova. Many thought that might have been a "fluke" but Gabrielle backed it up with another dominating win sending the once undefeated Russian Juggernaut into a horrendous slump.

When all you hear is how good your opponent is it tends to wear on you. Gabrielle was extremely confident and truth be told, she should be and I almost bought into all the hype. I needed some motivation and Gabrielle did just that when she made a public statement in the last TKO saying and I quote, "I always respect my opponents", adds Reece, "and have no disrespect for Victoria, but honestly am not afraid of her. I am bigger and stronger than her, and I feel better than ever". Saying you have no disrespect and then disrespecting me is what over-confident fighters do and more often than not it comes back to bite them in the ass.

She also slighted me when she said that I was another lady whose performances in the UCC are beyond expectations. Apparently she never followed me in the UMMA where I compiled a 21-8 record giving me a 29-9 professional record.

Everyone knows that Gabrielle is a world class athlete and has an extremely fit body but what she may have missed is that I was on the Swedish Ski Team and busted my knee and missed out on the Olympics. I've always kept myself in shape and knew deep down that I could hold my own physically. Her 40lb weight advantage looked to be a big hurdle but I'm a lot stronger than I look and I think I proved myself in the cage.

The fight ended up being very entertaining for the fans with lots of Heavyweight shots landed and some impressive feats of strength. The "Let's go Gabrielle!" and "Gabrielle...Gabrielle...Gabrielle" chants were deafening but I kept focused. I was feeling good as I was able to land some hooks to her ribs and beat her to the punch in a quick exchange. I was feeling pretty good until she fainted a few jabs and dropped with a hook. My head was reeling and I started kicking my legs trying to keep her off of me. She tried to drop a knee to my gut but I was able to roll away. She wouldn't let me up and stood on my hair while pulling my arms. It felt like my hair was being pulled out by the roots. She let go and tried to drop an elbow to my chest but she missed and it allowed me to get back to my feet.

I knew I had to get back into the fight and when I kicked her in the head and landed a Superman Punch I thought I won but she shrugged it off. I was able to take her down and control the fight, keeping her on her back until the 1st ended. Gabrielle came out in the 2nd trying to end the fight. I'm not going to lie, she hit me hard and I was in trouble. She kept up the pressure but I was able to hang on. We squared up and I looked for angles while she threw out a few jabs, I was able to catch her with a solid combo and she went down. I couldn't believe it as I looked down and Gabrielle wasn't moving. I'm sure we'll meet in the future and Gabrielle won't look past me again.

Valerie van der Graaf (7-3) vs Kylie Jenner (Badass Barbies)

Just like 95% of the UCC, I fucking hate Kylie Jenner. I like the fact that she is a self-made billionaire and is a role model for millions of teenagers but she really isn't a fighter. I know she has a good record and all but there is no way she's better than me and to lose to her is one of the most humiliating feelings one can have. I was all over her in the 1st and felt I was in control until she landed a lucky head kick. I'll admit I was hurt but took her down and tied her up until I recovered. That's when the true Kylie came out. It looked like the ref was going to stand us up when she slid up my chest and sat on my face. What a total bitch. It took everything in me to bridge that nasty crotch off my face.

My corner had to calm me down after that and when the 2nd started all I wanted to do is to knock her head off. She really had me off my game and I took too many chances and paid for it. Kylie never fights traditionally and uses hair pulls and head butts to get you off your game. I wish she would just fight like a normal fighter but she pushes the rules and the refs just let her get away with it because she's "Kylie Fucking Jenner".

Somebody is going to make her pay and if it isn't me then hope I'm ringside to take it all in.

Jessica Ashley (5-1) vs Yelena Isinbayeva (Queens of the Cage)

The first time I fought Yelena she handed me my only loss. I wish I could have said it was close but she absolutely targeted my breasts and must have punched and kicked them 25 times. I've never hurt so bad in my life and I could hardly breathe. It took weeks to recover but it taught me an important lesson. As you can imagine I wasn't about to go through that again and switched it up so I wouldn't be at a disadvantage in the clinch.

Yelena has been struggling lately which means that she may have been a bit desperate. I used that to my advantage and turned the tables and paid her back in the clinch. Unlike our 1st fight I was able to control her body and was able to land enough punches to end the fight just as the bell rang.

Redeeming my only loss felt awesome and even though I had the chance to pound on her titties, I held back and targeted her face. I will use the momentum in the Tournament and will hopefully make a run. I don't know what to expect seeing that I missed the first one but I look forward to showing the league that the Angels aren't a bunch of wimps.

Middleweights

Hofbrauhaus Beer Hall (Munich, Germany)

Tiffany Toth (7-3) vs Bar Refaeli (World of Fight)

Like Jessica, I got the opportunity to avenge an earlier loss. In my 1str fight with Bar Refaeli, we were just underway and I had her on her back landing some ground and pound when the ref pulled me off and stopped the fight saying my eye was too swollen to continue. As you can imagine, I was furious but despite all of our protests the decision was held up. I wanted to show the fans that I can hang with Bar and if we are allowed to fight we can put on a show,

We did just that and fought it out for a full 5 rounds, Unfortunately we were even and it went the full 25. Bar proved to be the better grappler and won the fight with a split decision.

I felt I did enough to win and I'm sure Bar could say the same. Bar and I are both entered in the Middleweight Mini Dress Bracket and if all goes according to plan we'll be fighting again in the finals. Next time I plan on winning. Of course I won't look past Kira Koorpi or Frederique Bel. We all have seen what that can do.

I hope the Bikini Frauds like my pose. It's all me, 100% natural with no special lighting or and hands covering up my flaws. I don't expect them to be trying to one us after they see us at our best.

Hope Dworaczyk (7-3) vs Nicole Kidman (Pyes Gorgeous Grapplers)

After losing to teammate Tiffany Toth, I was looking to get back on track against Nicole Kidman. She looked confident and had to tell me she was ready for this fight. OK, I was hoping she was but it never hurts to hear that from your opponent. After winning the Evening Dress Bracket Nicole has struggled losing to Gal Gadot and Bar Refaeli. I was trying to break a 3 fight losing streak so both of us were desperate for a win and would come out aggressively because neither of us could afford another loss. I was ready and went out looking to end it quickly.

It didn't start out good as she caught me off guard and threw me to the mat and quickly moved to mount then before I could catch my breath. She rolled me over and held me there until she got both hooks in. She was upset when the ref stood us up but she wasn't getting anywhere so the ref had no choice but to stand us up.

After getting back up I decided to take her down and see if I could get an advantage and spent most of the 2nd on top grinding her into the mat. By the end of the round it was clear she was spent and was done fighting. She may have thought she was the best on the ground but she found out how good I am. On her back she was a different fighter and I was able to grind her down.

The 3rd saw me keep it standing and use punches, kicks, and my clinch to punish Nicole. I did my best to knock her out but she has a solid chin and was able to take my best shots. I went back to the ground and once in full mount I was able to isolate her arm and locked on a tight armbar. Nicole almost didn't see what was happening and started slapping the mat.

Kimberly Phillips (5-2) vs Emily DiDonato (Death by Bikini)

There was so much pressure to beat Emily DiDonato that I didn't get any sleep. I couldn't eat and my nerves were shot. Both of us are very similar in that we didn't have the best starts but have gotten on track and we both had 2 fight win streaks to protect. When looking at her matches, Emily likes to use her legs and has ended her last 2 fights with head kicks while I switched it up and have learned how to fight in the clinch.

I knew in order to win I had to pull out all the stops and why I may not be proud of some of my tactics, it's up to Emily to defend them. I'm sure they'll be whining about the head butts, the crotch and breast claws but she knows that it happens in the UCC.

While those moves might seem desperate to some, stomach claws and a wedgie are perfectly legal and if you're too weak to stop them then you deserve to have them applied to you. All of them didn't matter because I was in control and could have ended her night any number of ways. By the time the 4th rolled around, the ref got involved and saved Emily.

Welterweights

Lowenbraukeller Brewery (Munich, Germany)

Kayslee Collins (6-3) vs Emily VanCamp (World of Fight)

I'm so disappointed in myself. Everytime I get a shot at a fighter who is above me in the standings I choke up and have my worst performances. Sure, I beat Megan Fox but that was months ago and that's only because I hurt her arm on a takedown attempt. Losing to Belen Rodriguez and Lulu Artiriska isn't the end of the world but Emily VanCamp is old and nowhere near as good.

I should have had my way with her and to lose out on a decision is unacceptable and will never happen again. The fight was going my way and I felt that I won the 1st and 2nd but got sloppy and Emily took over after another one of her dirty moves. I never fully recovered and let my teammates down.

She won a unanimous decision so it may not have been as close as I remembered but if we meet again she's not getting away with her dirty tactics and I guarantee a win.

I'll be fighting in the Mini Dress Bracket next month and will fight Charli Atkinson in the opening round. She'll be a challenge but I will come in with everything I have and plan on making a statement and getting Belen and Lulu back.

Raquel Pomplun (6-4) vs Amber Heard (Strikeforce)

I really don't know what's happening to me. I was going back and forth with Chloe Bennet and lost when she made me tap out to a surprise head scissors. I was beating the snot out of Amber Heard and lost when she knocked me out with a well placed uppercut.

I simply can't believe I got so sloppy. I was absolutely destroying her and out hit her 54-4 with her failing to land a single strike in over 6 minutes. Why does this keep happening to me?

It has to be that I let my guard down. I know Amber is a quality opponent but when you have someone on the ropes and the entire crowd was amazed she could fight on, you should win those fights.

I've seen matches where fighters simply refuse to be finished and more often than not they take a horrible beating but I know how to win and 5 of my 6 victories are via KO. I guess I have to be more aggressive next time,

I feel sorry for my next opponent Bella Thorne. I plan on using her as a warm up on my way to the title. I'm sure she'll have some smart words for me but she's all talk and once the bell rings I plan on showing her what a real cage fighter can do. I'll just have to keep my distance so I don't catch any skank pox from her. Once I beat Bella, Death by Bikini Barbara Palvin will be my next victim. Sorry Ladies. You're in my way and will be my next victims on my way to the title.

Camille Rowe (5-3) vs Aida Yespica (World of Fight)

The UCC is one of the most competitive leagues in professional sports. Every month fighters put it on the line and in a battle for dominance. Unfortunately there are judges involved and sometimes when they decide who wins a fight it's not the right decision.

My fight with Aida Yespica happened to be one of those fights, You may think I'm complaining because I lost and it's just sour grapes but that couldn't be further from the truth. Aida Yespica got screwed. She really deserved to win and I had no business winning a majority decision.

I did convincingly win the 3rd round and it should have been scored 10-8 but the rest of the rounds were clearly for Aida and I struggled to even land a strike.

When it was time for the decision to be announced my head was down as I was expecting the inevitable. When they said it was a majority decision I felt that they were watching the wrong fight. When they announced I won I knew they were. I'm sure Aida is blaming me but I had nothing to do with it.

Kennedy Summers (4-2) vs Sophie Monk (World of Fight)

When Sophie Monk and I fought at Canadian Brawl I was able to get a fairly easy win. We both went into the fight undefeated and when it was done I was 4-0 and feeling pretty good about myself.

After out hitting Kira Kosarin and coming out on the short end I felt that fighting Sophie again would get me back in the win column. I knew she would make changes but was confident that I would be a step ahead of her again and would be bringing home another win.

I fucked up bad. Sophie not only beat me but she did it by taking it to me in the clinch. That's what I'm known for and to lose at your own game is not only embarrassing it hard to live down as now every fighter will look at me differently and I'll have to reinvent myself. The fight was the opposite of the 1st and she was the better fighter.

I'll be training hard for my next tournament and I missed out the first time around. I've heard that they are grueling affairs but I'm ready and if I have to go a full 20 rounds then I'm willing to go for it.

I'll be opening it up with Alyson Michalka. Alyson is a good fighter but I'll give her everything I have because if I get past her I get to payback Kira Kosarin. It will probably be close but there's no way in hell she's winning again.

Augustiner-Keller Beer Garden (Munich, Germany)

Jessa Hinton (10-0) vs Jayde Nicole (Centerfold Angels) Title Fight

Being the Lightweight Champion is a dream come true for me. Before I fought Penelope Cruz nobody was giving me much of a chance and they said that I hadn't fought any tough competition. Let me set the record straight, Penelope Cruz was undefeated and Agyness Dyne and Madison Beer are solid fighters.

All I can do is beat whoever they put in front of me. Teammate Jayde Nicole is not only my good friend, she is the toughest fighter I've ever fought. With 8 wins in a row she was one of the hottest fighters in the UCC. I've trained with her and know how dangerous she is so beating her would take everything I had and I knew that maybe that wouldn't be enough.

I stuck with what got me to the title and Jayde did the same. The fight was on for the record books as both of us had our moments and neither had an advantage going into the 5th. I've been in tough fights before but never have I been pushed to the limits like I was when I fought Jayde.

When a fight is even it and it's going into the final round you find out what you're made of. I felt I won the round but Jayde came back and when the bell rang she was in full mount. I was hoping that the judges saw the round for what it was. When they said that they had a split decision, I wasn't sure who won. Fortunately they got it right.

Jayde Nicole (8-2) vs Jessa Hinton (Centerfold Angels) Title Fight

Jess and I are close and have been through a lot together so I hope she doesn't take this the wrong way. She got lucky and the Lightweight Title should be mine. I know this may sound like I'm a sore loser blah, blah, blah, but if you go back and watch the fight there is no question who won.

It was close and Jess was correct when she said it even going into the 5th but I won the final round. Just listen to the announcers, They even said that I had to be confident that I won.

Jess also mentioned that I was on top when the fight ended. Truth be told, she had nothing left. She couldn't even get herself up after the fight and they gave the round to her. I hope this doesn't cause a riff in our friendship but I have to be honest and in my opinion, I should have the belt. I guess if I had to lose to anyone it would be Jess but forst fucks sakes judges. Do your fucking job next time.

Ana Cheri (8-2) vs Lais Ribero (Death by Bikini)

I love Jayde and Jessa but I wish they could get past their title fight. I know they're uber competitive and both felt they won but fighting each other after the decision is just a waste of energy. With that said I want to congratulate Jessa and Victoria for defending and winning titles. I hope to get there some day.

When I found out I'd be fighting the highest ranked fighter from Death by Bikini I knew I couldn't lose. We hate those bitches and have been fortunate enough to own them in the cage so any loss would give them momentum and all important bragging rights.

Have I said we hate them?

She even told TKO what she was going to do to me. I'm not going to make it sound like I kicked her ass all over the cage because that didn't happen. She came out fast and I struggled trying to figure her out. She took rounds 1 and 2 and I knew if I didn't come back I would be in the same predicament that Jayde was and need a miraculous finish.

Lais made me work for it but I was able to take over the fight and took the final 3 rounds and won a unanimous 48--47 decision. Beating their best fighter was about as good as it gets and I hope she thinks long and hard before she calls us out again.

Gemma Lee Farrell (6-3) vs Candice Swanepoel (Candice and Erin)

Chesnes I'll get to beat Genevieve Morton again and if all goes well, I'll get a chance to even the score with rival Olga Kurylenko.

Candice Swanepoel is a legendary cage fighter who has probably seen and done everything. Fighting her is not only an honor but it's a chance to show the division that I belong among the elite.

I thought I had a chance if I used my grappling and striking I would have a shot at beating her. Candice proved to be too much and even though I had her in trouble she was able to fight through it and ended the fight in the 2nd.

I look forward to the upcoming tournament where I'll be putting on a sexy bikini and looking for a title. The bracket is full of Death by Bikini fighters and if I beat Shelby

Chelsie Aryn (5-3) vs Eva Green (Alpha Angels)

Anyone who knows me knows I spend a lot of time naked. I love the feeling of the air and water on my body and if I could I'd never wear clothes again. The fighters over at Death by Bikini should give it a try. You don't have to be embarrassed if your bodies aren't as full and well rounded as ours, nobody will care. I've never heard a single guy complain when my top comes off. I also love cage fighting and if I could do that naked I would.

Fighting Eva Green was contrasting in styles. I like to get in close and roll on the ground while Eva is a striker. It worked out in my favor as she was unable to stop my takedowns. She did a good job of tying me up but I managed to do some damage and when the 1st round ended she was tired from trying to stop me.

When the 2nd started I grabbed her by the hair, lifted her head up and then pulled down as hard as I could. It's called a hair mare and it's an effective way of getting someone off their feet. Sometimes it works too good and when Eva hit the ground she never got back up.

I'll be fighting a Lioness named Mandy Rose. She looks like she's spent some time naked so if she wants, we can have the 1st fight in the UCC au natural. What do you say, UCC? How about it, Mandy? If they don't go for it, maybe we can be the entertainment at the Raccoon Christmas Party. I plan on losing my attire after a couple of drinks.

Featherweights

Hirschgarten Beer Garden (Munich, Germany)

Kara Monaco (8-2) vs Audrey Aleen Allen (Centerfold Angels)

Fighting your best friend gives you mixed feelings. If you win then it's a win and in the UCC they are hard to come by. If you lose it's not the end of the world because while you may have lost at least your best friend won. After Audrey beat me in Canada I was happy for her but I wasn't about to let it happen again.

In our 1st fight, Audrey knocked me out in the 1st round. I knew that we were evenly matched and when we fought again it could just as easily go my way.

We fought tooth and nail and went the full 25 minutes. I came out fast and took the 21st round 10-8 but couldn't put Audrey away and she fought back and put it in the judges hands. It was close and the judges were split but luckily for me my dominating 1st round was enough to give me a split decision win.

I'd like to extend an olive branch to Kate Upton over at Death by Bikini. I know that there is a lot of bad blood between us and I really don't want this to escalate. Getting into brawls like the Barbies, Awesome Aries, Vixens, and the Lost Wildcats is not the direction I want this feud to go. If you quit acting like Prima Donna's and thinking you're better than us, then we'll quit putting all of our resources into kicking your asses in the cage. I hope this is the start of a new friendship.

Audrey Aleen Allen (7-3) vs Kara Monaco (Centerfold Angels) have my hands full.

Kara is a great leader and when she offered a compromise to the stuck up conceited bikini models, she showed that she is willing to go out on a ledge to make peace. Not many leaders are willing to negotiate when they are in control but Kara is not only a strong leader but she has a compassionate side. The Bikini Frauds would be foolish not to accept such a generous offer. Nobody wants a Stable War especially when it is so one-sided. I'm sure Kate and Chrissy will come to their senses and we will be at peace by the next event.

Losing is never OK even if it's to a friend and a teammate. I went into the fight looking to beat Kara at all costs and wasn't going to give her any breaks. She felt the same and came out strong and had me in big trouble leaving me with a big hole to fight out of.

I thought I might have done enough to win a decision but Kara won and I'm going to have to live with the decision.

With the tournament around the corner I will have to work on my conditioning seeing that it could come down to fighting 100 minutes in a single night. The worst scenario would be to gas out in the later matches. That's when injuries happen. I'll get Awesome Aries Suzuka Ishikawa in the 1st round. She's a great competitor and I know I will

Nikki Leigh (6-4) vs Cara Delevingne (Badass Barbies)

Losing to Cara Delevingne for the 2nd time is hard to swallow. Kind of like a mouthful of coconut, Yuk! I really feel that I can take Cara but when we get in the cage I just can't find my range and she uses her long arms and legs to beat me down. I was getting ready for the fight when they came in and told me that Cara was now a Badass Barbie. I feel sorry for her and I'm sure she's upset and that's why she fought like she did. You wouldn't wish that on your worst enemy. Working for Kylie would suck.

All I know is that I have to have a good tournament and at least make the finals even if it means fighting Cara again. I'm 6-4 in the UCC after starting my career 5-1. My only win was a quick KO against Victoria Justice. Beating Victoria should have been a positive and most fighters would have built on that huge win but I followed it up by landing 2 total punches against Cara.

Losing sucks and if I can't turn it around I wouldn't blame Kara if I get replaced. It's not that I can't beat good fighters. Besides Victoria, I have quality wins over Nina Moric, Jennie, and Mila Kunis so I know I have what it takes to be a top fighter. Now all I have to do is become consistent and string a few wins together.

Sara Jean Underwood (4-2) vs Mila Kunis (World of Fight)

only hurting physically but I'm doubting my own abilities.

Like Nikki, I'm bitterly disappointed in myself. After beating Elisabetta Canalis I felt that I would have a good fight with her teammate Mila Kunis. I know they have totally different styles with Mila preferring to stand and trade but that is my specialty. I'm known for being a clinch fighter and to have another fighter dominate me in close is the way Mila did is not only humiliating, it makes me wonder if I'm going into fights with the right strategies. When you convince yourself you're good at something and your opponent absolutely owns you at it, you feel like you're in the wrong business.

Now I've lost fights before but when you're beaten like I was and nothing works you have to do some soul searching. You know it's bad when your corner is concerned for your safety and they quit giving you instructions other than warning you when your opponent is coming. I'm sure I'll get over this loss but right now I'm not

I missed out the tournament the 1st time around and maybe should have taken this one off.

Jaclyn Swedberg (4-2) vs Reese Witherspoon (Pyes Gorgeous Grapplers)

I want to start out by throwing my full support to Sara Jean and Nikki. After winning 3 fights I fell into a rut and lost my next fight to Olivia Holt. If losing to Olivia wasn't bad enough I also fell short against Jennie. I was about to give up but the Angels wouldn't let me quit.

My opponent. Reese Witherspoon, was on a win streak albeit it was against Natalie Portman and Eva Longoria, a couple of washed up old ladies. Still she had won 2 in a row and I did the opposite.

It was seconds into the fight and she landed a kick that almost took my head off. I was seeing stars and all I heard was the crowd yelling "Holy Shit" over and over again. I was reeling and I knew it must have been bad. Before I could recover she landed an impressive one-two combo and I was in trouble, big trouble. I was in survival mode and my instincts told me to tie her up until my head cleared. Luckily for me I had a tight grip on her and was able to survive.

From the clinch I was able to fight back and beat her down in close. It took a few rounds but after her initial flurry, she never caused any more damage and I was able to have my way with her. Reese can take a punch and she hung in there until the 4th when it became too much for her to take. I landed a flurry of punches and knocked her out 2 minutes into the 4th.

Like a lot of Angels, I missed out on the 1st tournament and they showed me no favors when they put me up against Rose. Rose is from BLACKPINK and is teammates with Jennie. If Rose is anything like Jennie, I'll have to have the fight of my life if I want to advance.
