Fallout Equestria

Sweet Nothings

A pony sits alone in a detention cell, waiting for his sentence to be carried out. The cell is cramped, and the walls and floor are cold and hard, but the cot is soft and warm, and the pony wants to just stay there—safe and secure.

A mare is dead, and a foal orphaned.

There's only one punishment for what happened.

A security mare comes to collect him, to get rid of what's not wanted. She takes him to the stable door and opens it.

It's dark on the other side beyond the light cast out from the stable; and the exile hesitates, shaking and forcing back tears.

Security threatens him to keep moving, to not look back.

Slowly, the exile moves down the ramp and across the threshold into the world outside. The door closes with a grating screech of metal on metal. Bolts lock into place.

The exile's life is over.

Side Stories:

I have some inspiration for some short, related stories outside of the main narrative. This is where I'll put them as they get produced.

- Standing, Still - A hundred years after the balefire, two snipers face off in a ruined city.

Acknowledgements:

We all know none of us would be here right now if it wasn't for the wonderful creative efforts of Lauren Faust for bringing us Friendship is Magic. Likewise to Kkat for inspiring an entire sub-community. And to Interplay Entertainment, Black Isle Studios, Bethesda Game Studios, and Obsidian Entertainment for the Fallout series.

All the other FOE authors out there, those I've read and even those I haven't read (yet). You guys helped make this community what it is by starting a conversation that I want to be a part of. Keep up the good work.

I also have to thank Slotos and Malicious Muse for all their contributions. Slotos for his brutal honesty and for cracking the whip when I need it and making sure the narrative is cohesive. Muse for helping me make my prose more elegant and for letting me appropriate his poetry. And my proofers/prereaders: Ana Mizuki and Snipehamster. You guys rock. Woo-hoo.

Thanks also to Integral Archer for joining the team as a copyeditor and really beating it into me how bad I am with commas. Hopefully I'll learn to get better. And for stepping up as story editor when I needed it.

And thank you, Just Moth, for coming on board to help preread as well.

Thank you to HereticOfDune for the wonderful cover art. I know I was a pain in the ass with all my vague descriptions, demandpants, and general persnickety-ness. Seeing my characters brought to life was a major help in motivating me to see this through.

Last but not least, you, dear readers. For taking the time out of your day to step inside my world. I hope I don't disappoint.
