

It would take about 3 million years, counting at 1 per second, to count all of the brain's synapses.

A group of hyenas is called a cackle.

Laughter is the shortest distance between two people. - VICTOR BORGE

Luna moths have no mouthparts. They do all their eating when they are caterpillars.

A 2011 study by a Swiss University showed that stockbrokers are more reckless and manipulative than diagnosed psychopaths.

Human beings have as many brain cells in their stomachs as cats have in their brains.

The Museum of Bread Culture in Ulm, Germany has a collection of over 18,000 objects, none of which is bread.

In 2011, there was no Friday 30th December in Samoa because it jumped across the international dateline.

No matter how fast light travels it finds the darkness has always got there first, and is waiting for it. – TERRY PRATCHETT

Albert Einstein's eyeballs are in a safety deposit box in New York.

Blanket octopuses are immune to the stings of Portuguese man o'wars and will sometimes rip off a tentacle to wield as a weapon.

Nottingham was originally called Snotengaham. It was ruled by a Saxon Chief named Snot, it literally means 'the homestead of Snot's people'.

In imperial Japan, high-born women peed standing-up so as not to crease their kimonos.

A man ought to read just as inclination leads him; for what he reads as a task will do him little good. – SAMUEL JOHNSON

Word of the day: LETHOLOGICA - ... the inability to remember the right word.

Fish suffer from insomnia.

Cheese is the most shoplifted food in the UK