

This is Ivory, a student at Milliones 6-12 and a Remake Learning Days ambassador. I just attended Art of Clay, hosted by Maddie Salapow at the Union Project on May 10th at 10am to 3pm as part of Remake Learning Days 2025.

The Art of Clay was an amazing event giving many wonderful people from all ages the chance to experiment and express themselves with clay while also potentially donating what they've made to people in Pittsburgh.

When I attended, I was looking forward to connecting with people over shared interest in clay and to make some creations myself. I was pleasantly surprised to see a dual event with many selling pottery, along with the many adults and children at the RLD event. This event left me in awe of the amount of people who let their child-like side come out and how much of a bonding experience this event was for many. By the end, there was a wall of sculptures and pottery ready to be given.

To learn more about Art of Clay, visit the Union Project at Unionproject.org.

Learn more at remakelearningdays.org. For Remake Learning Days, this is Youth Ambassador Ivory.