

OPEN SCHOLARSHIP FOR THE SOCIAL SCIENCES

O3S: Open Scholarship for the Social Sciences

October 18-19, 2018

University of Maryland, College Park

Special Events Room: 6137 McKeldin Library

The symposium will (a) highlight research that uses the tools and methods of open scholarship; (b) bring together researchers who work on problems of open access, publishing, and open scholarship; and (c) facilitate exchange of ideas on the development of SocArXiv.

The O3S Symposium takes place the week before Open Access Week, a global event raising awareness about the benefits of open access and inspiring wider participation in making open access a new norm in scholarship and research.

Visit <https://socy.umd.edu/centers/socarxiv-o3s-conference> and follow us on Twitter (@socarxiv) and Facebook (www.facebook.com/socarxiv) for information and updates. We'll be using #O3S18 when tweeting about this symposium.

The O3S Symposium is generously sponsored by the College of Behavioral and Social Sciences, the Department of Sociology, the Department of Psychology, and the University Libraries at the University of Maryland.

03S SYMPOSIUM PROGRAM

Note: all events are in McKeldin Library Special Events Room (6137) unless otherwise noted.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 18

8:00 - 9:00 am: Registration and Light Breakfast

9:00 - 9:30 am: Welcome & Opening Remarks

Gregory Ball, Dean, University of Maryland College of Behavioral and Social Sciences

Roberto Patricio Korzeniewicz, Professor and Chair, Sociology, University of Maryland

9:30 - 11:00 am: Panel 1: Research Panel 1

Open Qualitative Coding: An Example Using Couples' Narratives About Money

Dr. Joanna Pepin received her PhD from the Department of Sociology at the University of Maryland. She is currently a Postdoctoral Fellow at the Population Research Center at the University of Texas - Austin. Her research focuses on changing families and gender inequality.

Changing the Incentive Structure: Aligning Faculty Evaluation with Institutional Values and Faculty Reporting

Dr. Michael Dougherty is professor and chair of Psychology at the University of Maryland. His primary area of research is on cognitive psychology, with a focus judgment and decision making, cognitive ability, and metacognition.

Who Speaks in the People's House? Policy Talk and Political Inequality in the U.S. Congress

Nicholas C. Judd is a Ph.D candidate in the Department of Sociology at the University of Chicago and a graduate student lecturer in the College. His dissertation uses interviews and quantitative analysis of data extracted from administrative records to explore the changing role of campaign contributors in political coalitions. Nick has held fellowships at Pew Research Center and The Sunlight Foundation. Previously, Nick was managing editor of techPresident, a news website covering technology in politics. His career began as a newspaper reporter covering local politics in New Jersey and the Bronx, N.Y.

Discussant: Philip N. Cohen, University of Maryland

11:15 am - 12:30 pm: Panel 2: Open NGO Data

Pew Research Center

Patrick van Kessel is a senior data scientist at Pew Research Center, specializing in computational social science research and methodology. He is the author of studies that have used natural language processing and machine learning to measure negative political discourse and news sharing behavior by members of Congress on social media, and is involved in the ongoing development of best practices for the application of data science methods across the Center.

Center for Victim Research

Laura Puls is the Research Librarian at the National Center for Victims of Crime. She contributes to the Center for Victim Research by managing the CVR Library collection, responding to reference questions, and leading trainings on library search methods. Previously, Laura worked at the Council on Foreign Relations Library leading trainings on database research, online search, and organizational tools.

Dr. Jeffrey L. Sedgwick is currently Executive Director of the Justice Research and Statistics Association (JRSA), a national association of criminal justice statistical analysts and researchers in Washington, DC. He served as Assistant Attorney General – Office of Justice Programs during 2008 and director of the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) from 2006 to 2008. He is professor emeritus of political science at the University of Massachusetts Amherst, where he began working in 1978, specializing in aspects of American government including public finance, criminal justice policy, and the role of the American presidency. He has a bachelor's degree in political science from Kenyon College, a master's degree in public administration and public policy from the University of Virginia, and a Ph.D. in government and public affairs, also from UVA.

Migration Policy Institute

Jeanne Batalova is a Senior Policy Analyst and Demographer at the Migration Policy Institute. Her areas of expertise include the impacts of immigrants on society and labor markets; social and economic mobility of first- and second-generation youth and young adults; and the policies and practices regulating immigration and integration of immigrant professionals and foreign students in the United States and other countries. She is also Manager of the MPI Data Hub, a one-stop, web-based resource that provides instant access to the latest facts, stats, and maps covering U.S. and global data on immigration and immigrant integration.

Discussant: Brittany Dernberger, University of Maryland

12:30 - 1:15 pm: Lunch (provided for all attendees)

1:25 pm: Remarks

Babak Hamidzadeh, Interim Dean of Libraries, University of Maryland

1:30 - 2:30 pm: Keynote Address: “Building Strong Institutions for Open Scholarship: Lessons from the Sociology of Science” livestream [here]

Dr. Elizabeth Popp Berman is Associate Professor of Sociology at the University at Albany, SUNY. Her first book, Creating the Market University: How Academic Science Became an Economic Engine (Princeton University Press, 2012), won several awards from the American Sociological Association and the Social Science History Association. She is currently completing a second book, Thinking Like an

Economist: How Economics Became the Language of Public Policy, supported in part by the Richard B. Fisher Membership of the Institute for Advanced Study. Her research interests are in economic sociology, organizations, and the sociology of science and knowledge, and she is beginning a new project on disciplinary responses to the reproducibility crisis in social science.

2:30 - 2:45 pm: Break

2:45 - 4:15 pm: Panel 3: Research Panel 2

Open Academic Writing: An Atom Based Workflow

Dr. Juan Carlos Castillo received his Doctorate in Sociology from the University of Humboldt, Berlin. He is currently the deputy director of the Center for Conflict Studies and Social Cohesion (COES) and director of the Study Group of Sociology and Information Sciences of CONICYT. His research focuses on the link between the subjective and objective dimensions of economic inequality, as well as political attitudes and civic education. His work has been published in journals such as Social Justice Research, Social Science Research, and Social Psychology Quarterly.

Annotation for Transparent Inquiry (ATI): Transparency in Practice in Qualitative Research

Sebastian Karcher is the Associate Director of the Qualitative Data Repository at Syracuse University. His main research interests are in qualitative data management, curation, and the integration of data tools into scholarly workflows. He is an active contributor to several scholarly open source projects, including Zotero and the Citation Style Language, as well as a founding editor of the emerging Author Carpentry series of lessons. He holds a PhD in political science from Northwestern University. Sebastian has published in both social science journals such as International Science Quarterly and Socio-Economic Review and information science journals such as IFLA Journal and Data Science Journal.

Diana Kapiszewski is received her PhD in political science from UC Berkeley in 2007. Her research interests include public law, comparative politics, and research methods. Her first book, High Courts and Economic Governance in Argentina and Brazil (Cambridge University Press, 2012), which received the APSA Law and Courts Section's C. Herman Pritchett Award, explores high court-elected branch interactions over economic policy in Argentina and Brazil in the post-transition period. Her current work examines judicial politics and the uses of law in Latin America. One project analyzes institutions of electoral governance and another investigates informal workers' use of legal strategies in the region; each focuses specifically on Brazil and Mexico.

The Influence of Status on Conflicting Institutional Logics: Valuations of Legitimacy and Predation in Scientific Publishing

Kyle Siler is a Researcher at the Copernicus Institute of Sustainable Development at Utrecht University. His previous research on peer review has been published in Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, Social Studies of Science and Science, Technology and Human Values. His current research projects involve mapping the changing intellectual and economic niches in modern scientific publishing, as well as analyzing decision-making following lucky and unlucky outcomes.

Discussant: Dawn Dow, University of Maryland

4:15-5:30: Paywall: The Business of Scholarship

5:30 - 7:00 pm: Reception & Networking in the Portico Room (2109 McKeldin Library)

Need a place to eat dinner?

- On-campus options: <http://cvs.umd.edu/visitors/dining.html>
- Nearby in College Park: <http://shopcollegepark.org/search/#/type=dining>
- Two favorites among the UMD Sociology Department include Franklin's (<http://www.franklinsbrewery.com/>) and Busboys & Poets (<http://www.busboysandpoets.com/about/hyattsville>) in Hyattsville, Maryland.

Friday, October 19

8:00 - 9:00 am: Registration and Light Breakfast

9:00 - 9:10 am: Opening Remarks

Philip Cohen, Director, SocArXiv, and Professor of Sociology, University of Maryland

9:15 - 10:15 am: Keynote Address: “Open Is: A Conversation” [livestream

here]

April Hathcock is the Scholarly Communications Librarian at NYU where she educates the campus community on issues of ownership, access, and rights in the research lifecycle. She received her J.D. and LL.M. in International and Comparative Law from Duke University School of Law and her M.L.I.S. from the University of South Florida. Before entering librarianship, she practiced intellectual property and antitrust law for a global private firm. Her research interests include diversity and inclusion in librarianship, cultural creation and exchange, and the ways in which social and legal infrastructures benefit the works of certain groups over others. She is a 2018 Library Journal Mover and Shaker, as well as the author of the article “White Librarianship in Blackface: Diversity Initiatives in LIS” and the blog At the Intersection, which examines issues at the intersection of feminism, libraries, social justice, and the law.

10:30 am - 12:00 pm: Library Panel

Krista Cox is the director of public policy Initiatives at ARL. In this role, she advocates for the policy priorities of the Association and executes strategies to implement these priorities. She monitors legislative trends and participates in ARL’s outreach to the Executive Branch and the US Congress. Prior to joining ARL, Krista worked as the staff attorney for Knowledge Ecology International, an organization dedicated to searching for better outcomes, including new solutions, to the management of knowledge resources, particularly in the context of social justice.

Krista received her JD from the University of Notre Dame and her BA in English from the University of California, Santa Barbara. She is licensed to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, and the State Bar of California.

Cynthia Hudson-Vitale, Penn State University Libraries

Kristy Darby, Library of Congress

Discussant:

Dr. Jeff Spies is the co-founder and Chief Technology Officer (CTO) of the Center for Open Science (COS), a non-profit technology company missioned to increase openness, integrity, and reproducibility of scholarly research. As CTO, he is responsible for technical strategy, product vision, software architecture, external partner/funder development, and management of COS Labs—COS's research and development team. Dr. Spies also co-leads SHARE—an initiative by the Association of Research Libraries and COS to create a free, open dataset of research activity across the research life-cycle. He has a Ph.D. in Quantitative Psychology (read: Behavioral Statistics) from the University of Virginia, where he now holds a Visiting Assistant Professor position in the Department of Engineering and Society. His dissertation included the development of the Open Science Framework—a free, open source workflow management system and scholarly commons that is now the flagship product of COS.

12:00 - 12:30 pm: Lunch (provided for attendees)

12:30 - 1:30pm: Q & A with Arthur Lupia, head of the National Science Foundation Directorate for Social, Behavioral, and Economic Sciences; Board Chair of the Center for Open Science

Dr. Arthur Lupia is the head of the Directorate for Social, Behavioral, and Economic Sciences (SBE), which supports fundamental research in behavioral, cognitive, social and economic sciences. Lupia has more than 25 years of leadership and management experience in the social sciences community. Since 2006, he has served as the Hal R. Varian Collegiate Professor of Political Science at the University of Michigan. He also is the former chairman of the board for the Center for Open Science, and chair of the National Academies Roundtable on the Communication and Use of Social and Behavioral Sciences. Lupia has also held leadership positions in numerous professional societies.

Discussants:

Dr. Micah Altman is Director of Research and Head/Scientist, Program on Information Science for the MIT Libraries, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dr. Altman is also a Non-Resident Senior Fellow at The Brookings Institution. Prior to joining MIT, Dr. Altman served at Harvard University for fifteen years as the Associate Director of the Harvard-MIT Data Center, Archival Director of the Henry A. Murray Archive, and Senior Research Scientist in the Institute for Quantitative Social Sciences.

Dr. Elizabeth Popp Berman, University at Albany, SUNY

1:30 pm: Closing Remarks

The O3S Symposium is generously sponsored by the College of Behavioral and Social Sciences, the Department of Sociology, the Department of Psychology, and the University Libraries at the University of Maryland.

DEPARTMENT OF
Sociology
BE SOCIAL

DEPARTMENT OF Psychology
BE UNDERSTOOD

UNIVERSITY
LIBRARIES

COLLEGE OF
BEHAVIORAL & SOCIAL SCIENCES
THE SOLUTION

What Is SocArXiv?

SocArXiv, open archive of the social sciences, is a partner of the nonprofit Center for Open Science (COS) and is housed at the University of Maryland. SocArXiv provides a free and publicly accessible platform for social scientists to upload working papers, pre-prints, published papers, data, and code. SocArXiv is dedicated to opening up social science, to reach more people more effectively, to improve research, and build the future of scholarly communication. Since the development of SocArXiv was first announced in July 2016, researchers have deposited more than 1,400 papers.