

Australian Labor Party Manifesto

How to heal the nation

Communications

- The Government will create Independent Television (ITV), a new television channel to prioritise local content above anything else.
- The Government will reform the Australian Classification Board in order to bring it into the 21st century and finally unban content which was unrightfully banned.
- The Government will, on a trial basis, retender Community Television licences. These differ from ITV because they are more similar to C31.
- The Government will ban the usage of Artificial Intelligence for both artwork and text, due to the increase of AI-generated content across the internet.

Transport

- The Government will renationalise Journey Beyond services, and return passenger rail services to remote SA and all of Tasmania under the Australian National brand.

Economy

- The Government will split up Coles and Woolworths into companies with at maximum 7% market share. Each of these companies must have at least 1 store in each state and territory.
 - One of these companies will be Commonwealth owned to allow people who are hard on cash to still get nutritious food at a low cost.
- The Government will create a National Energy, Water and Gas Commission in order to streamline costs of utilities across the nation, and to prevent greedy private companies from increasing the price unnecessarily.
