(Lord) Edwin “Phobos” Jarrius

Well, I guess I’m supposed to write down what I did before I got here where to begin? Welp I was born in Ireland sometime in the 80’s to a rich family of Provo’s. Ma and Da were well... parents they left me to my own devices I spent most of my time in the woods playing soldier with my toys. My family never fought for the IRA on the ground we mainly assisted with smuggling and financials. We organized several shipments that brought missiles and other weapons over the mainland. It was about 2000 when Da and Ma were sent to the cages leaving me as the main organizer for shipments of guns to several rebel groups throughout the world. I made trips to Cuba, Iraq, and Iran working my side mission of collecting artifacts from throughout history.

During my travels, I have amassed a large collection of artifacts, from ancient manuscripts, swords of the knight's templar, possibly cursed items, and weapons of war. These are still being maintained by my only surviving friend, my butler Wadsworth who still takes care of my collection. After years of this, I got pulled by the coppers in upper Dublin and was offered a choice by some suits who I now know were member of the foundation to join their site staff. I’ve quickly risen the ranks to become a supervisor of the Finance and logistics department.

Employment at the foundation
