The Schuylkill Center for Environmental Education
The Schuylkill Center is the proud site of numerous Eagle Scout projects and we are honored that you have considered us to be a part of your journey to earn the rank of Eagle Scout. With our mission in mind, you will have the opportunity to demonstrate your own unique leadership skills by creating a project that fosters appreciation, deepens understanding, and/or encourages stewardship of the environment.

Examples of past project impacts include the restoration of our natural landscape, improving the accessibility of trails, and upgrading our Visitor Center/wildlife clinic facilities. As the first step of the process, please fill out the Scout Project Request Form so we can match your interests with the needs of the Center. If we are able to accommodate your request, we will organize a meeting with a staff member to further discuss the details of your project.

The Healthy Community Lifespaces is an organization working to promote the well-being of students' well-being, nutrition, and happiness. We were recently planning and gaining permission for the implementation of a story-walk that will be showcasing the book, "The Little Brown Seed", during its first run, to inspire individuals young and old to keep growing physically and mentally. This will hopefully be in Wentz Park, during the springtime. However, we were wondering if any of the scouts would be interested in helping with the actual construction of the Storywalk which includes the building of signs, to depict each page of the book.

Project: old project request - check with Wiss Trails for updates

Before February 2024, we'd like to build and install a few (not many, probably 2-4) nest boxes for American kestrels. Their populations have been taking a hit, partly due to habitat loss, and so we want to create spaces they can use during the breeding season. The two preserves where we've most frequently seen kestrels are our Willow Lake Farm and our Hughes Family Preserve at Briar Hill. There may be other spots, but those are what we're thinking of starting with.

The project would involve using designs that we have to build the nest boxes, and installing the boxes in the meadows at each preserve. We'd like the boxes to be on some sort of pulley system so that we can raise and lower them in order to monitor any nesting activity. That part isn't quite figured out, since it's not part of any nest box designs we've come across. We have had Eagle Scouts complete similar projects where they sourced the materials, organized a work day to build nest boxes, and then led the installation.

Project:

- No existing plans for Kiosks at various Preserves
- We'd be open to a new design, though, if researching that would be something a Scout might be interested in.
- The main things are that whatever is inside is shaded from the sun and enclosed, and there are brochure slots attached to the outside. Aside from the wasps getting in, our biggest problem is that the insides are annoying to add materials to (have been stapling things in, but it's tough to always have to pull out the staples and it start to look raggedly), so our thought was to add corkboard as the backing so we can just use push pins.
- We also want to retrofit the existing kiosks. Part of it might also include some improvements to our current kiosks (things like making them better-sealed so that wasps don't get it, easier to add and remove materials inside, etc.).
